ZZZZZ

Riley's room,
darkened with shadows.
She's asleep,
tossing and turning, her mind showing signs of distress.

Joy, Sadness, Fear, Anger, and Disgust sit nervously in the Control Room.
The control buttons flicker and spark.

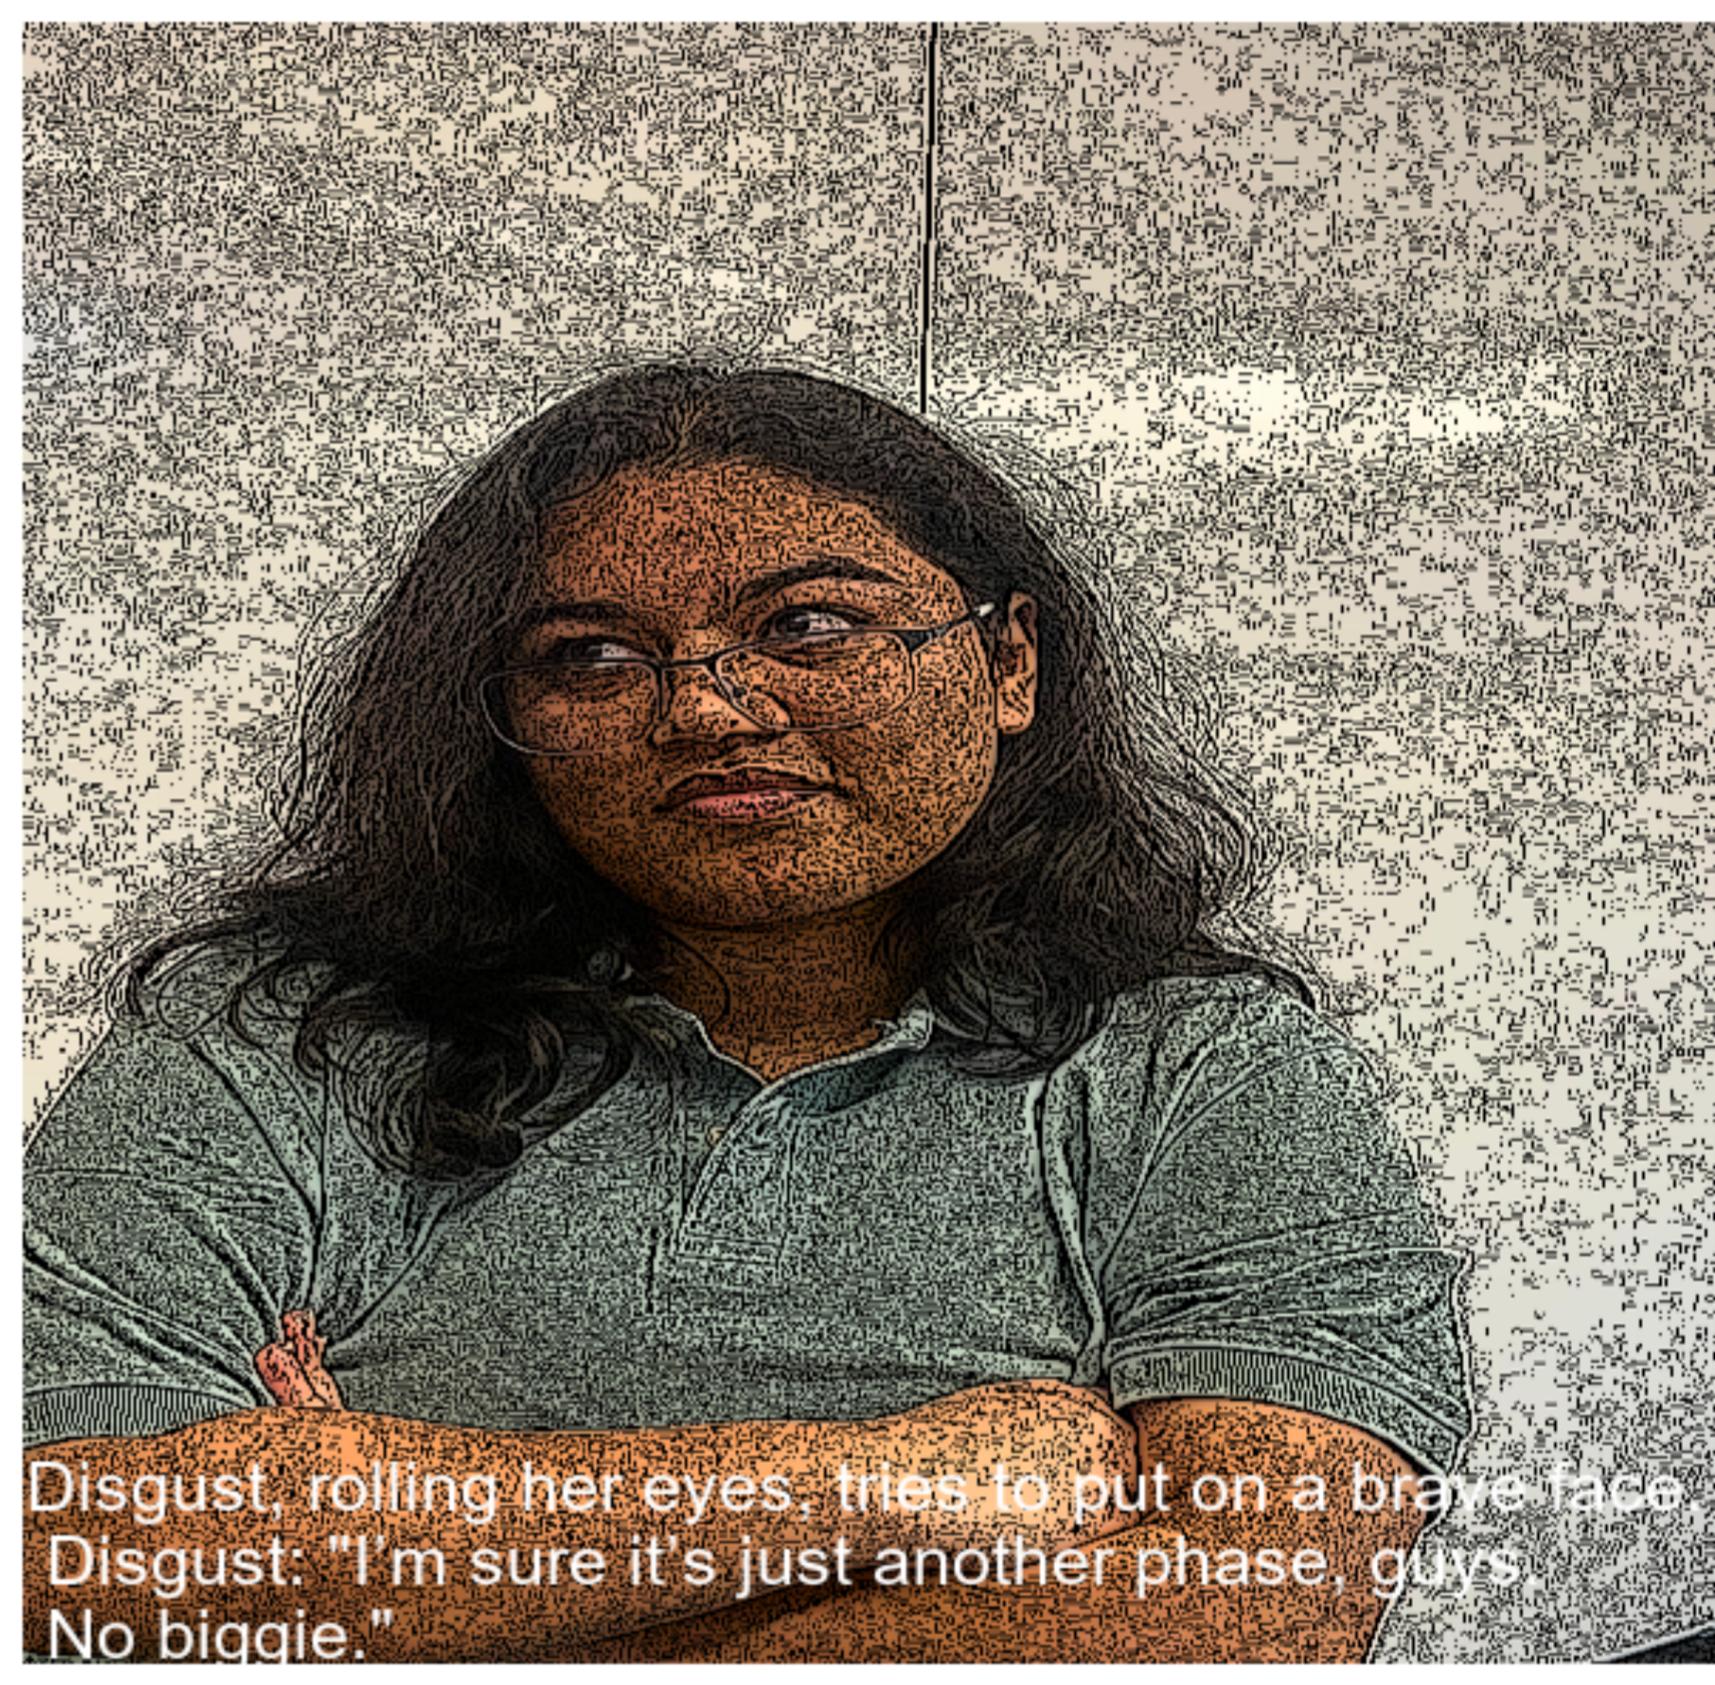

Joy looks at the monitors, with a worried look Joy: "Something's wrong...
This isn't just a bad dream..."

Fear clutches a pillow, panicking.
Fear: "I knew it! The nightmares... they're taking over!"

Sadness, staring at a swirling dark vortex, mutters.
Sadness: "We're... losing control..."

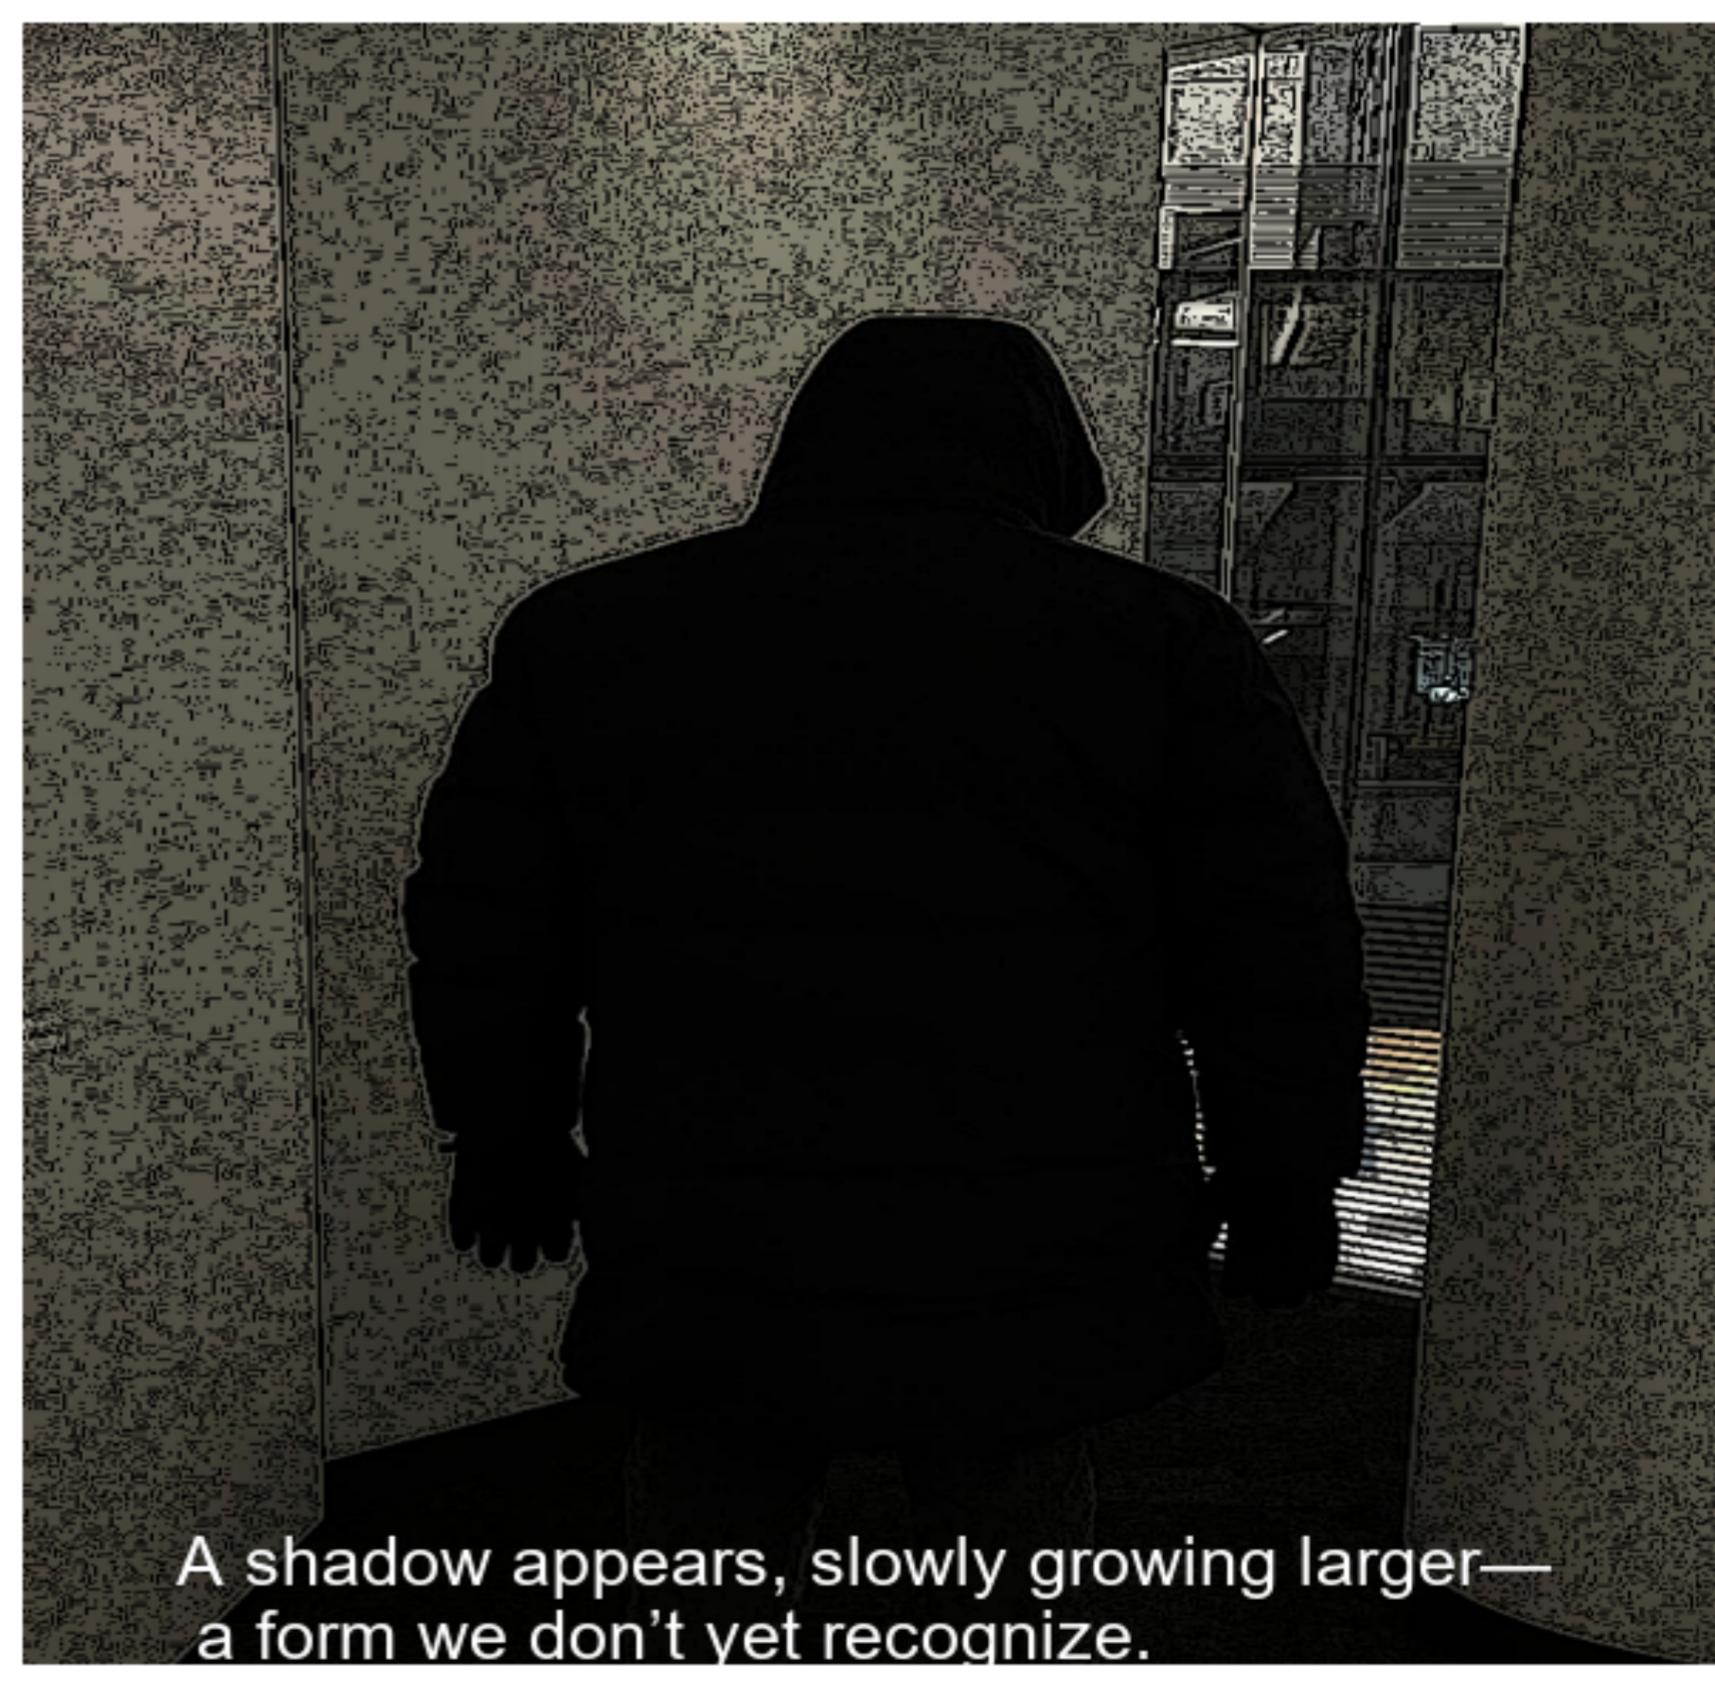

Disgust, rolling her eyes, tries to put on a brave face.
Disgust: "I'm sure it's just another phase, guys
No biggie."

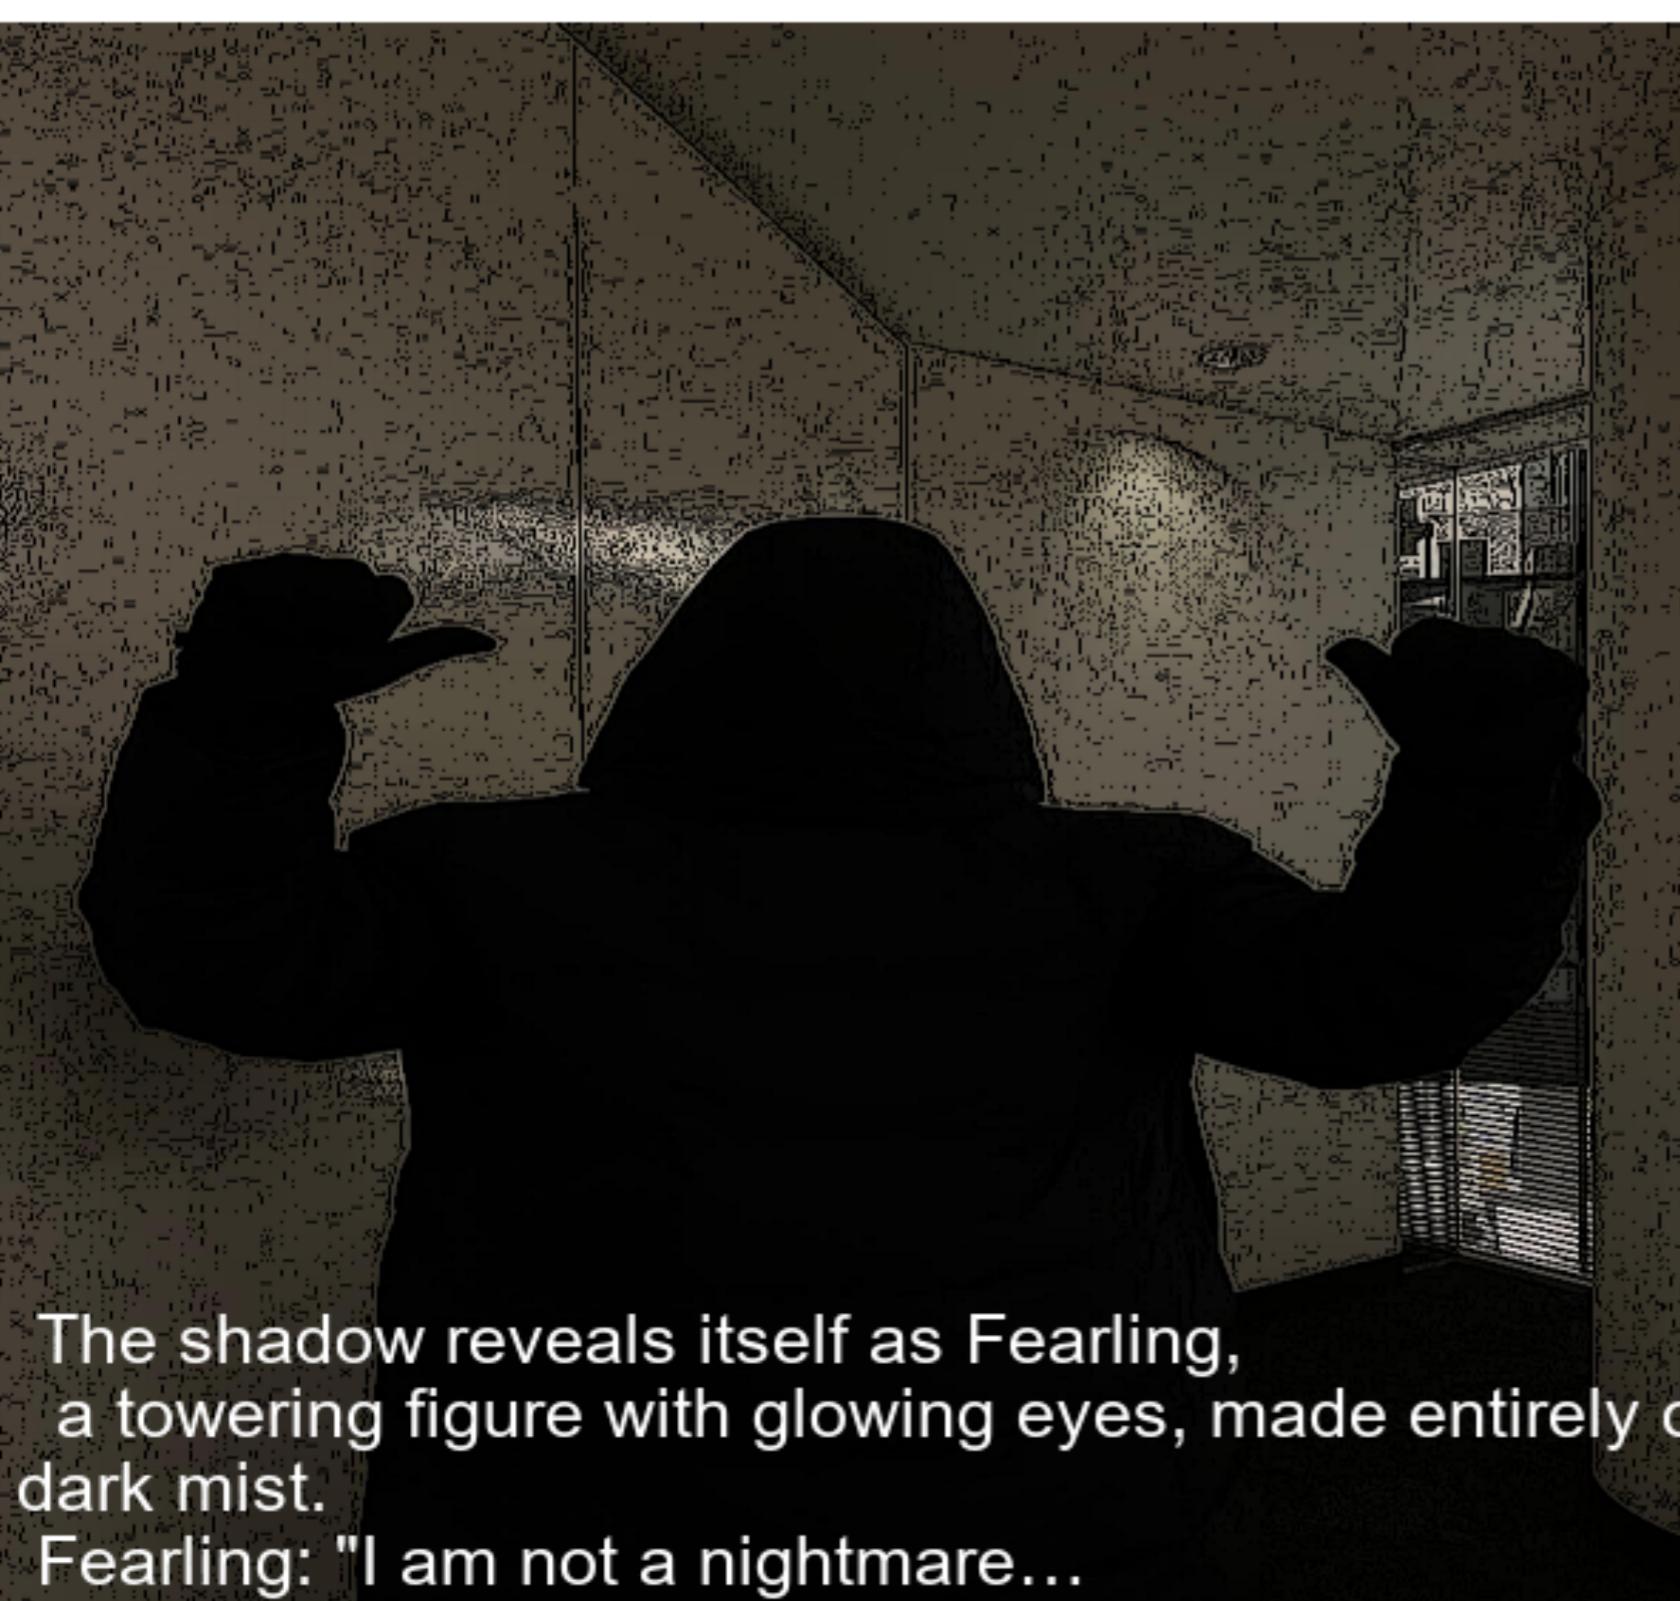

WHOOSH!

The atmosphere shifts—
the walls of Riley's mind begin to distort, twisting and bending.

A shadow appears, slowly growing larger—a form we don't yet recognize.

The shadow reveals itself as Fearling,
a towering figure with glowing eyes, made entirely of dark mist.
Fearling: "I am not a nightmare...
I am your worst fear, Riley."

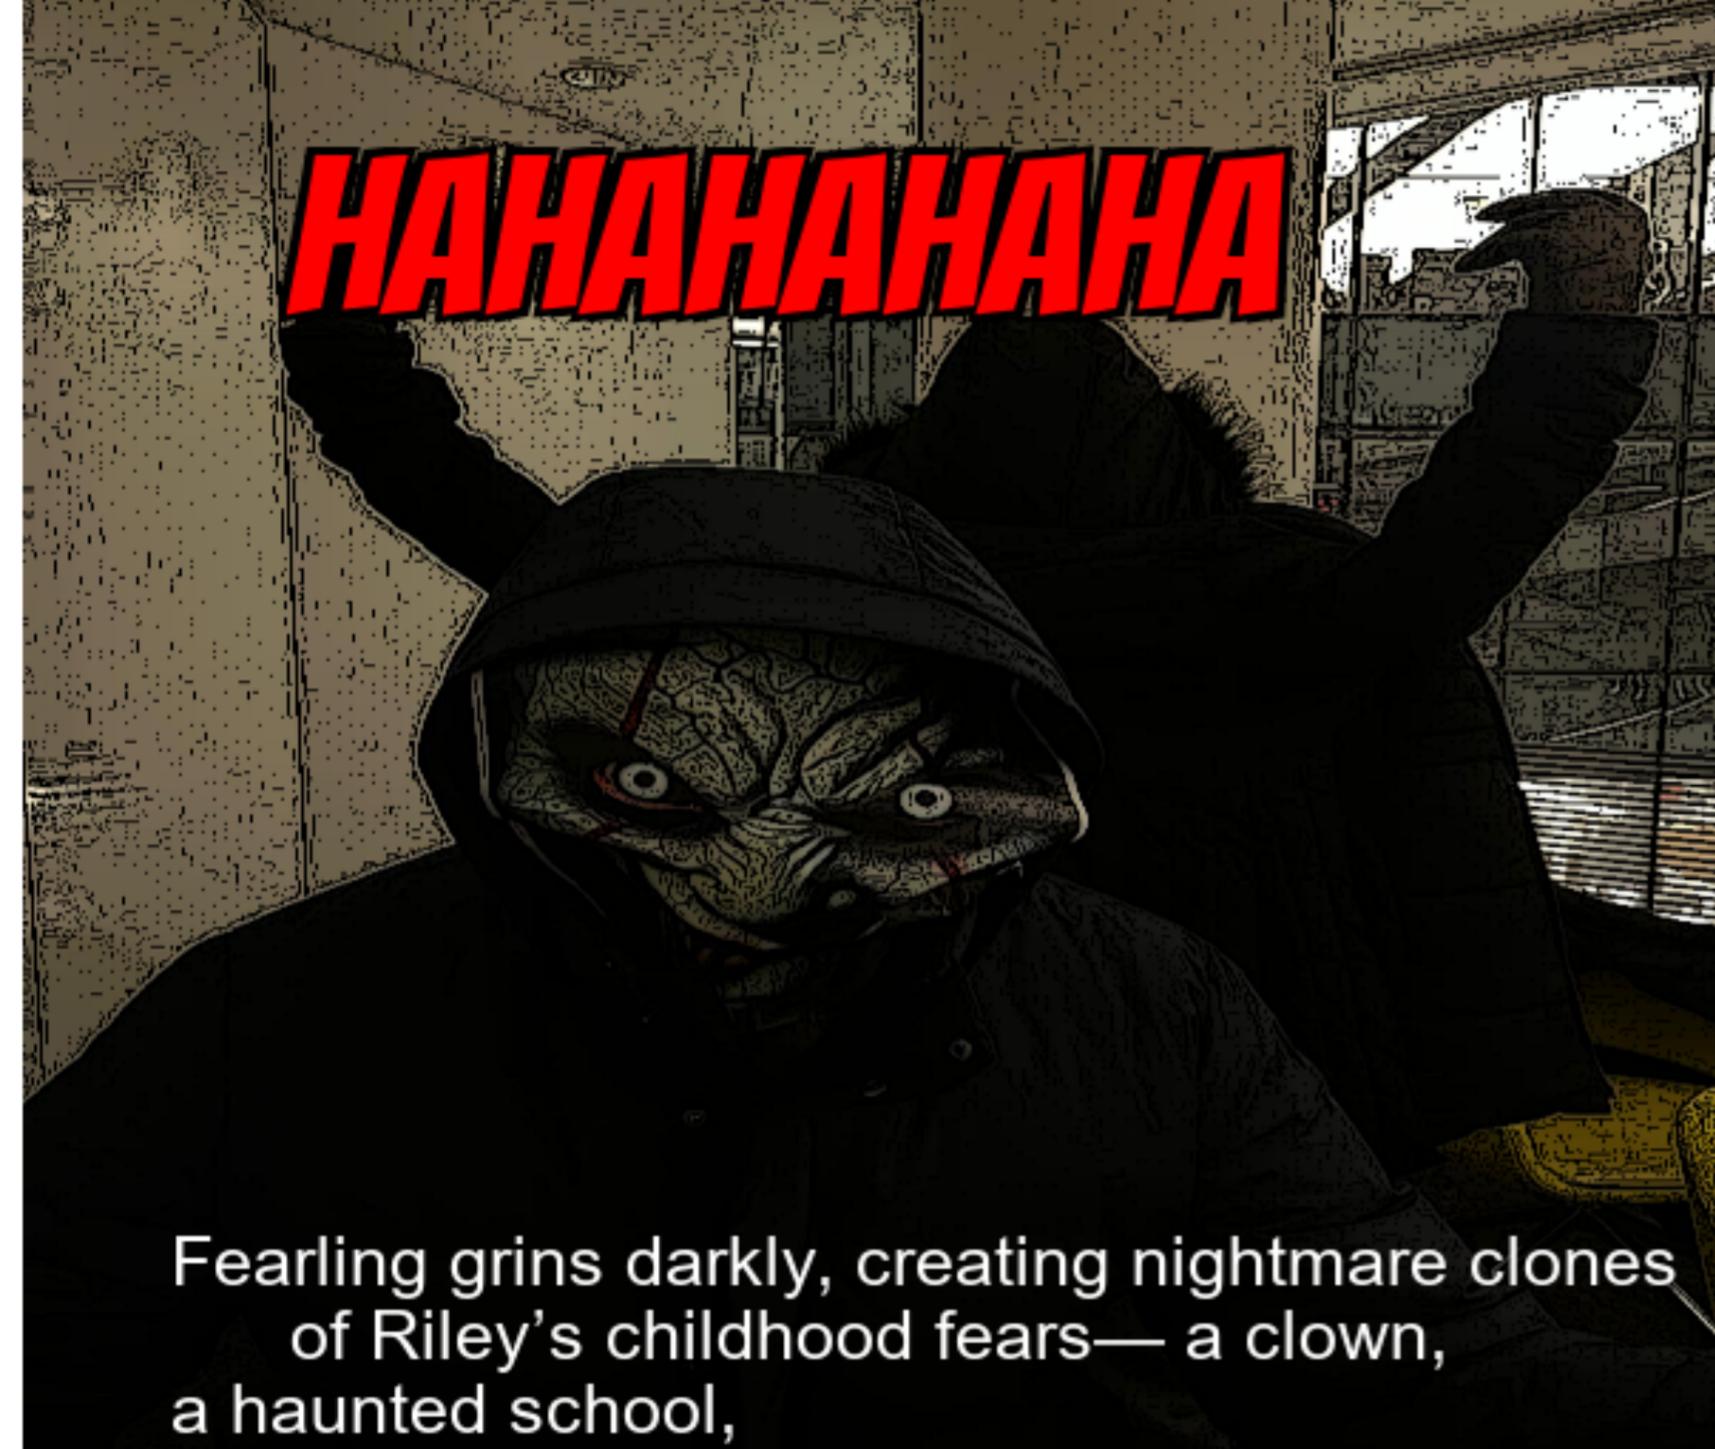

Joy, nervously approaching, attempts to act confident.
Joy: "We've handled worse, right?
We can handle this!"

Fearing reaches out, and everything in the room starts to shudder.
Fearling: "It's too late for that. This is my domain now."

Anger, jumping forward, enraged.
Anger: "Don't you dare take control of our space!"

Fearling grins darkly, creating nightmare clones of Riley's childhood fears—a clown, a haunted school, and monsters from her past memories.

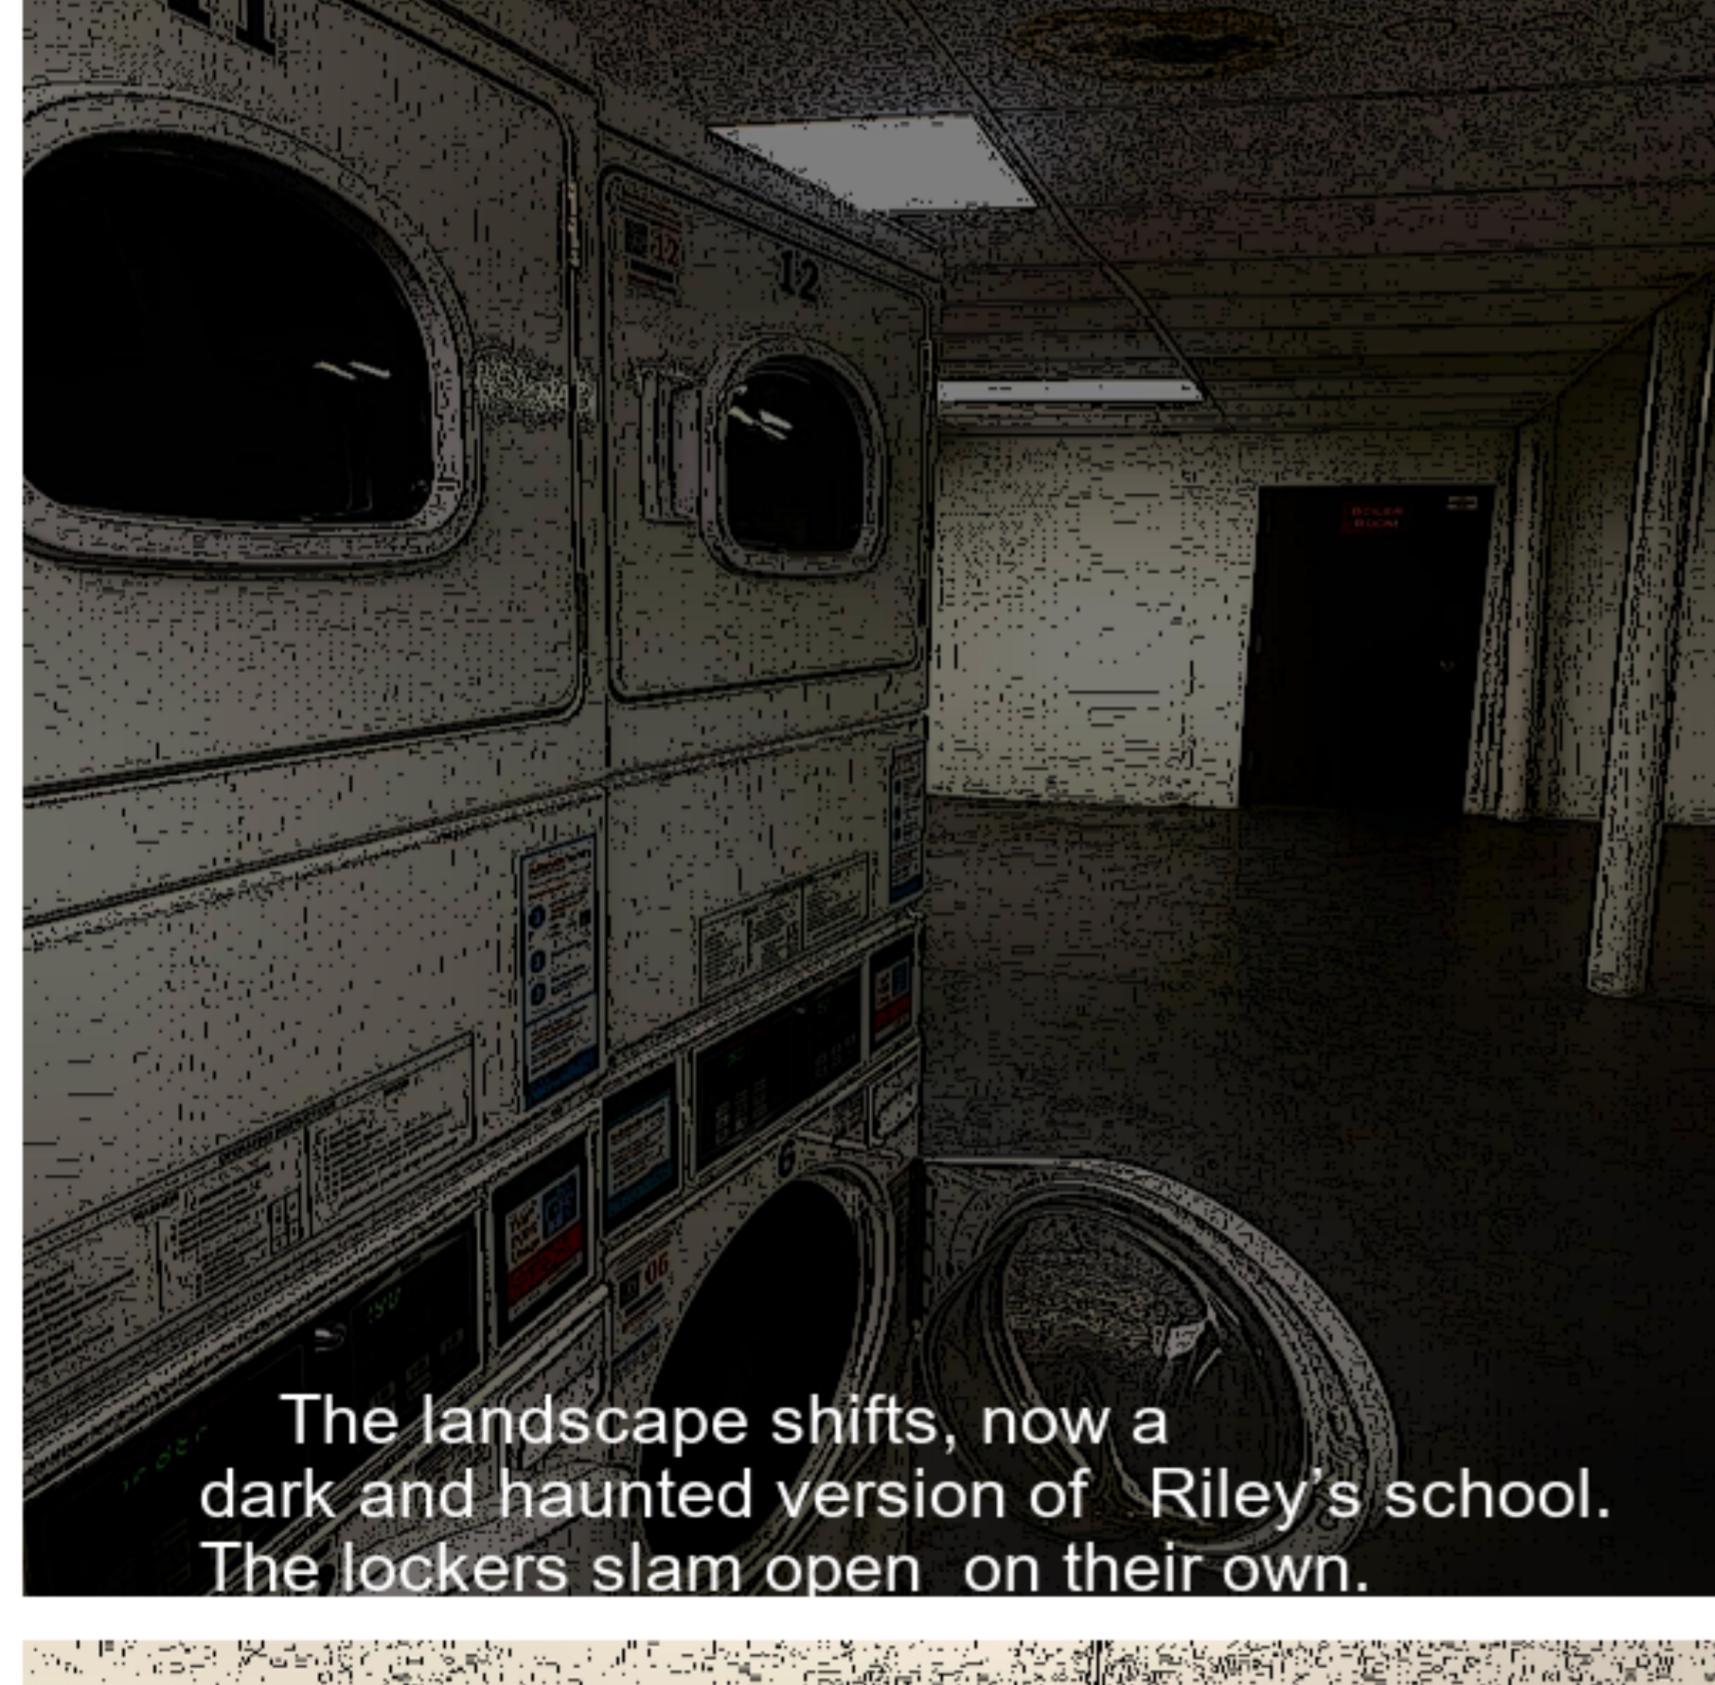

The clown's head pops up behind Anger.
Clown: "Remember me, Anger?"

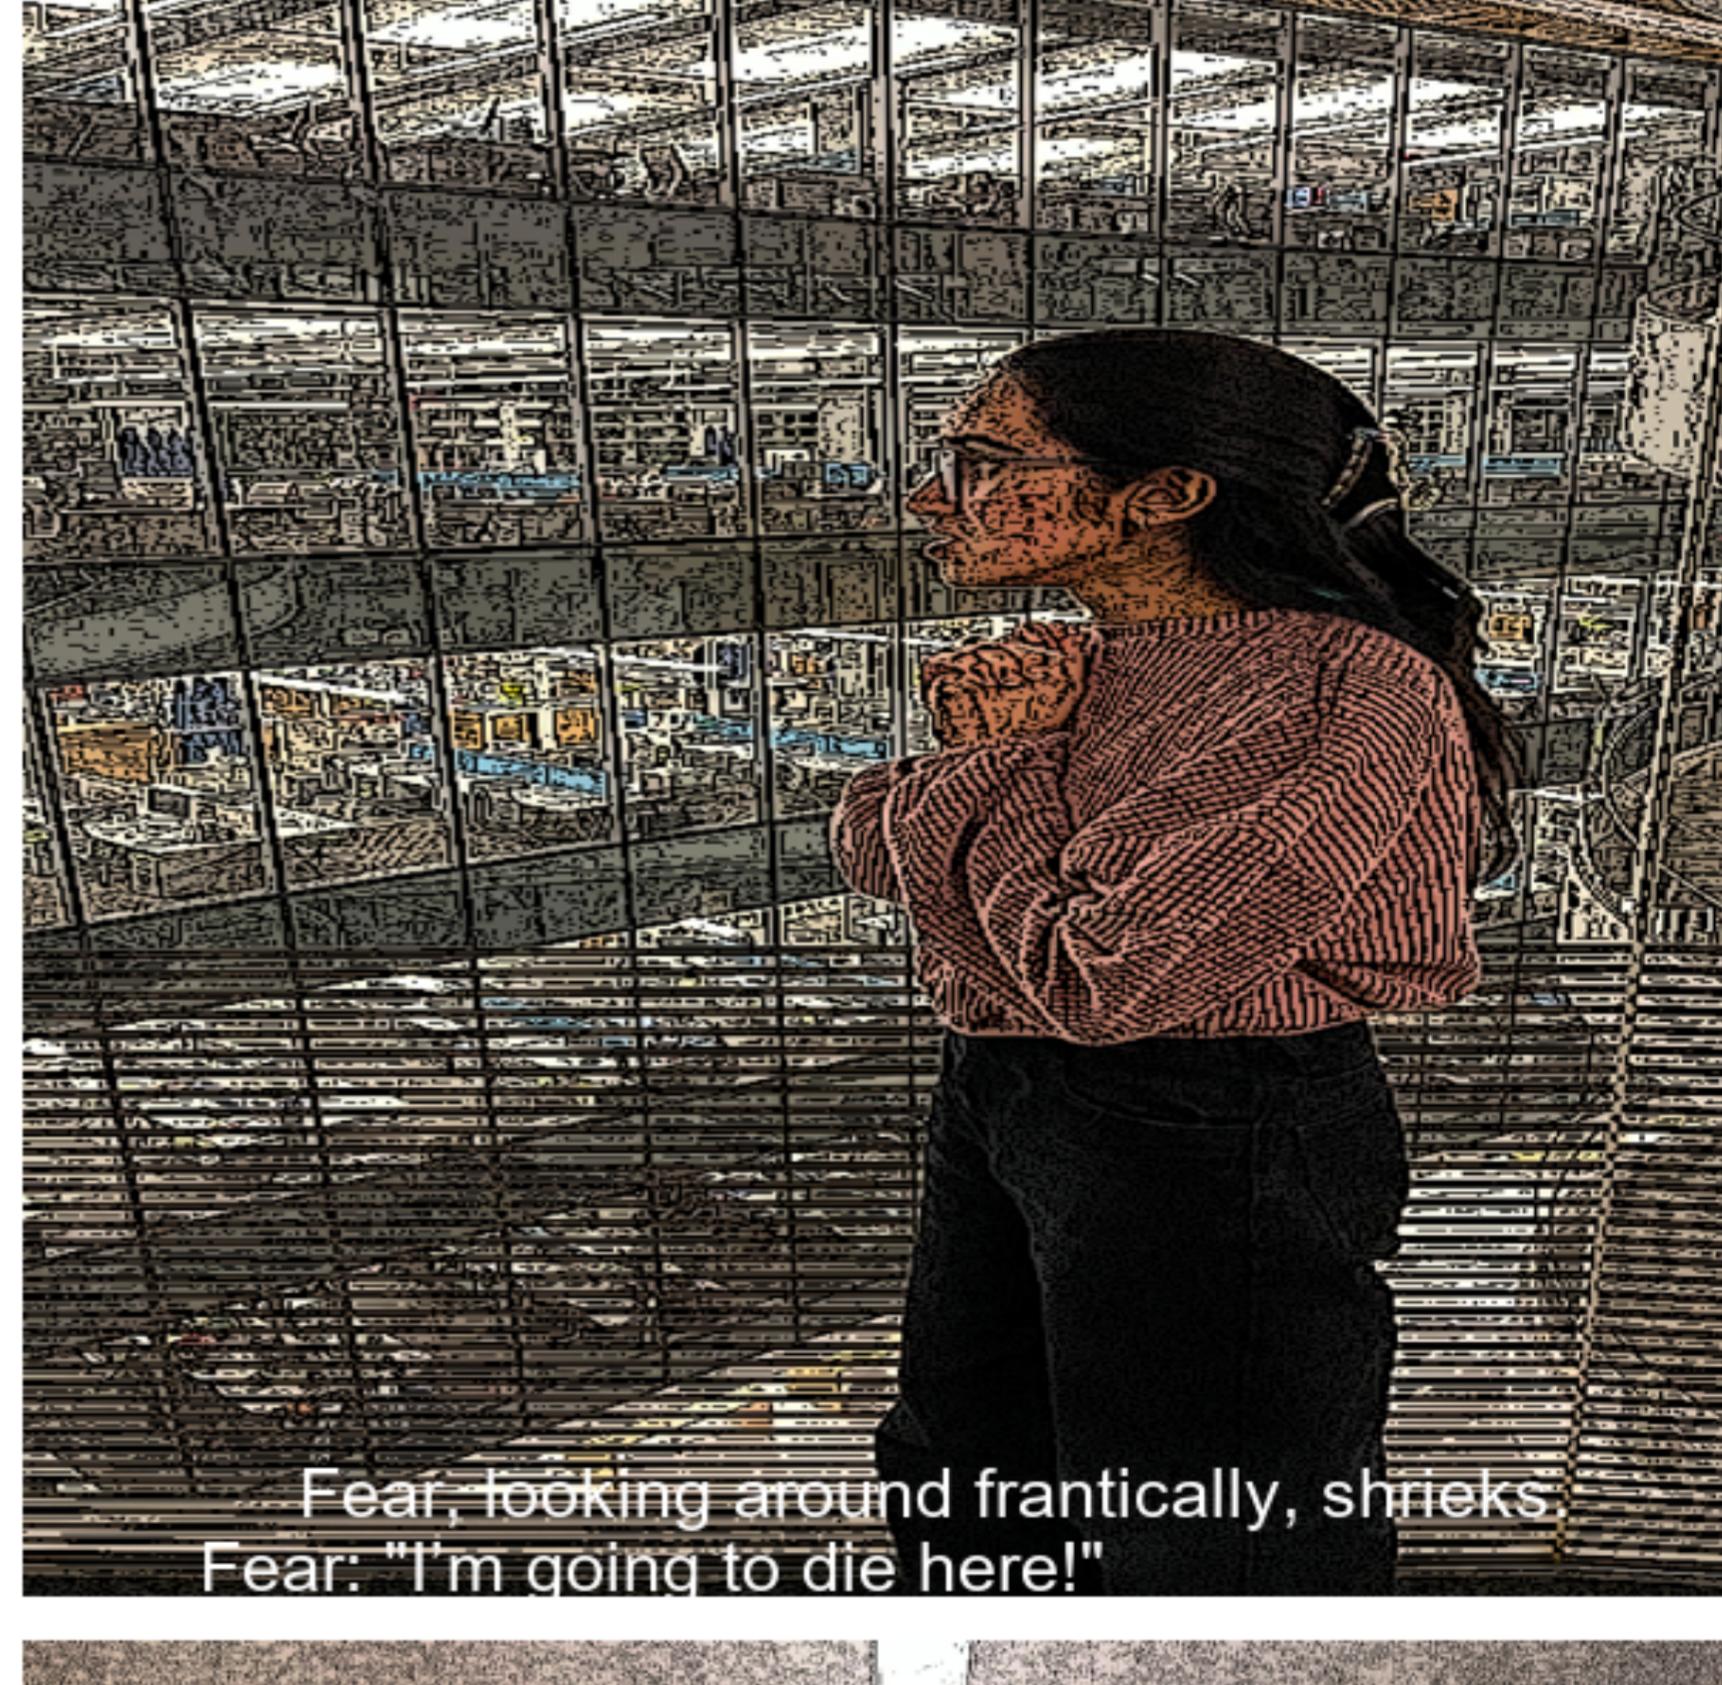

Anger's eyes bulge in fury.
Anger: "I hate clowns!"

The emotions scatter, trying to avoid the clones of Riley's past fears.

The landscape shifts, now a dark and haunted version of Riley's school. The lockers slam open on their own.

Fear, looking around frantically, shrieks.
Fear: "I'm going to die here!"

Disgust tries to remain calm.
Disgust: "Okay, okay. Just don't touch anything... please. Everything here is gross."

Joy attempts to rally the group.
Joy: "We can definitely fix this. Let's just... find Riley's happiness again!"

GRRRRR

Anger pulls out a ridiculous makeshift weapon.
Anger: "Time to fight back, one point at a time!"

Sadness is curled up, looking defeated.
Sadness: "This is bad. I can feel it... we might lose Riley."

Suddenly, they hear a loud scream echoing down the hallway.

Joy, Fear, and Anger look toward the dark hallway, dread in their eyes.

Fearling steps forward in the hallway, his form glowing with menace.
Fearling: "Riley's fears are mine now. All of her worst memories belong to me."

The emotions face off. Fear is visibly shaking, Sadness is curled up, Anger is ready to throw a tantrum.

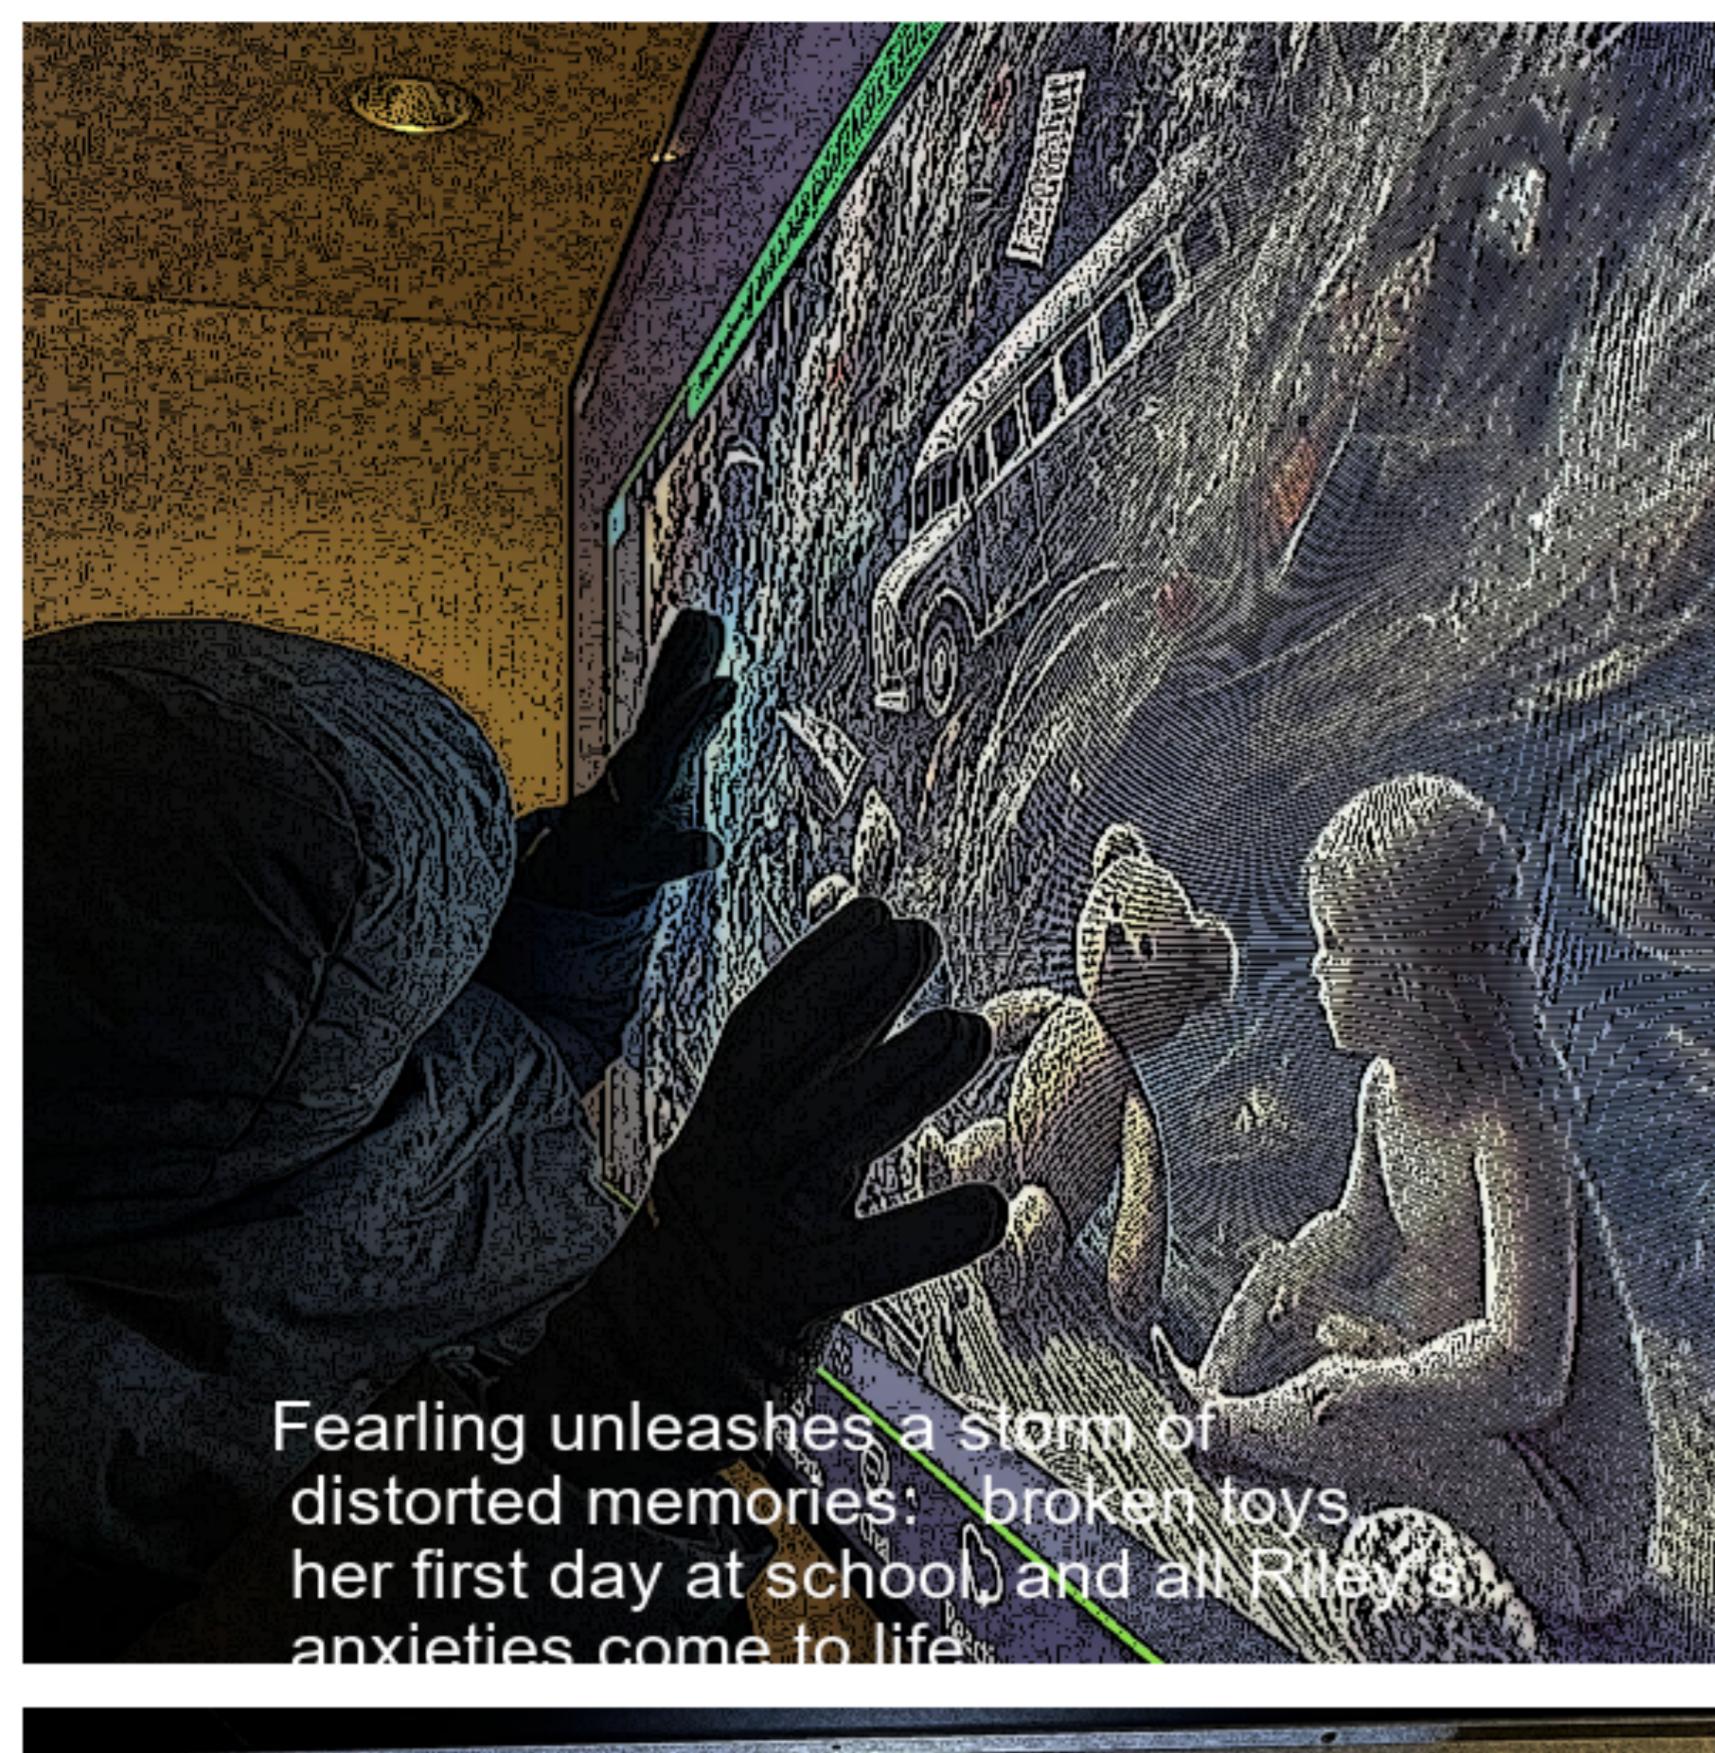

HMM

Joy, trying to stay optimistic, stands his ground.
Joy: "We've beaten bigger monsters! This is just a shadow!"

Fearling laughs maniacally, his laugh rattling the environment.
Fearling: "Oh, Joy... you have no idea what you're up against."

A nightmare version of Riley's parents appears, looking cold and distant.
Nightmare Dad: "You failed us, Riley."

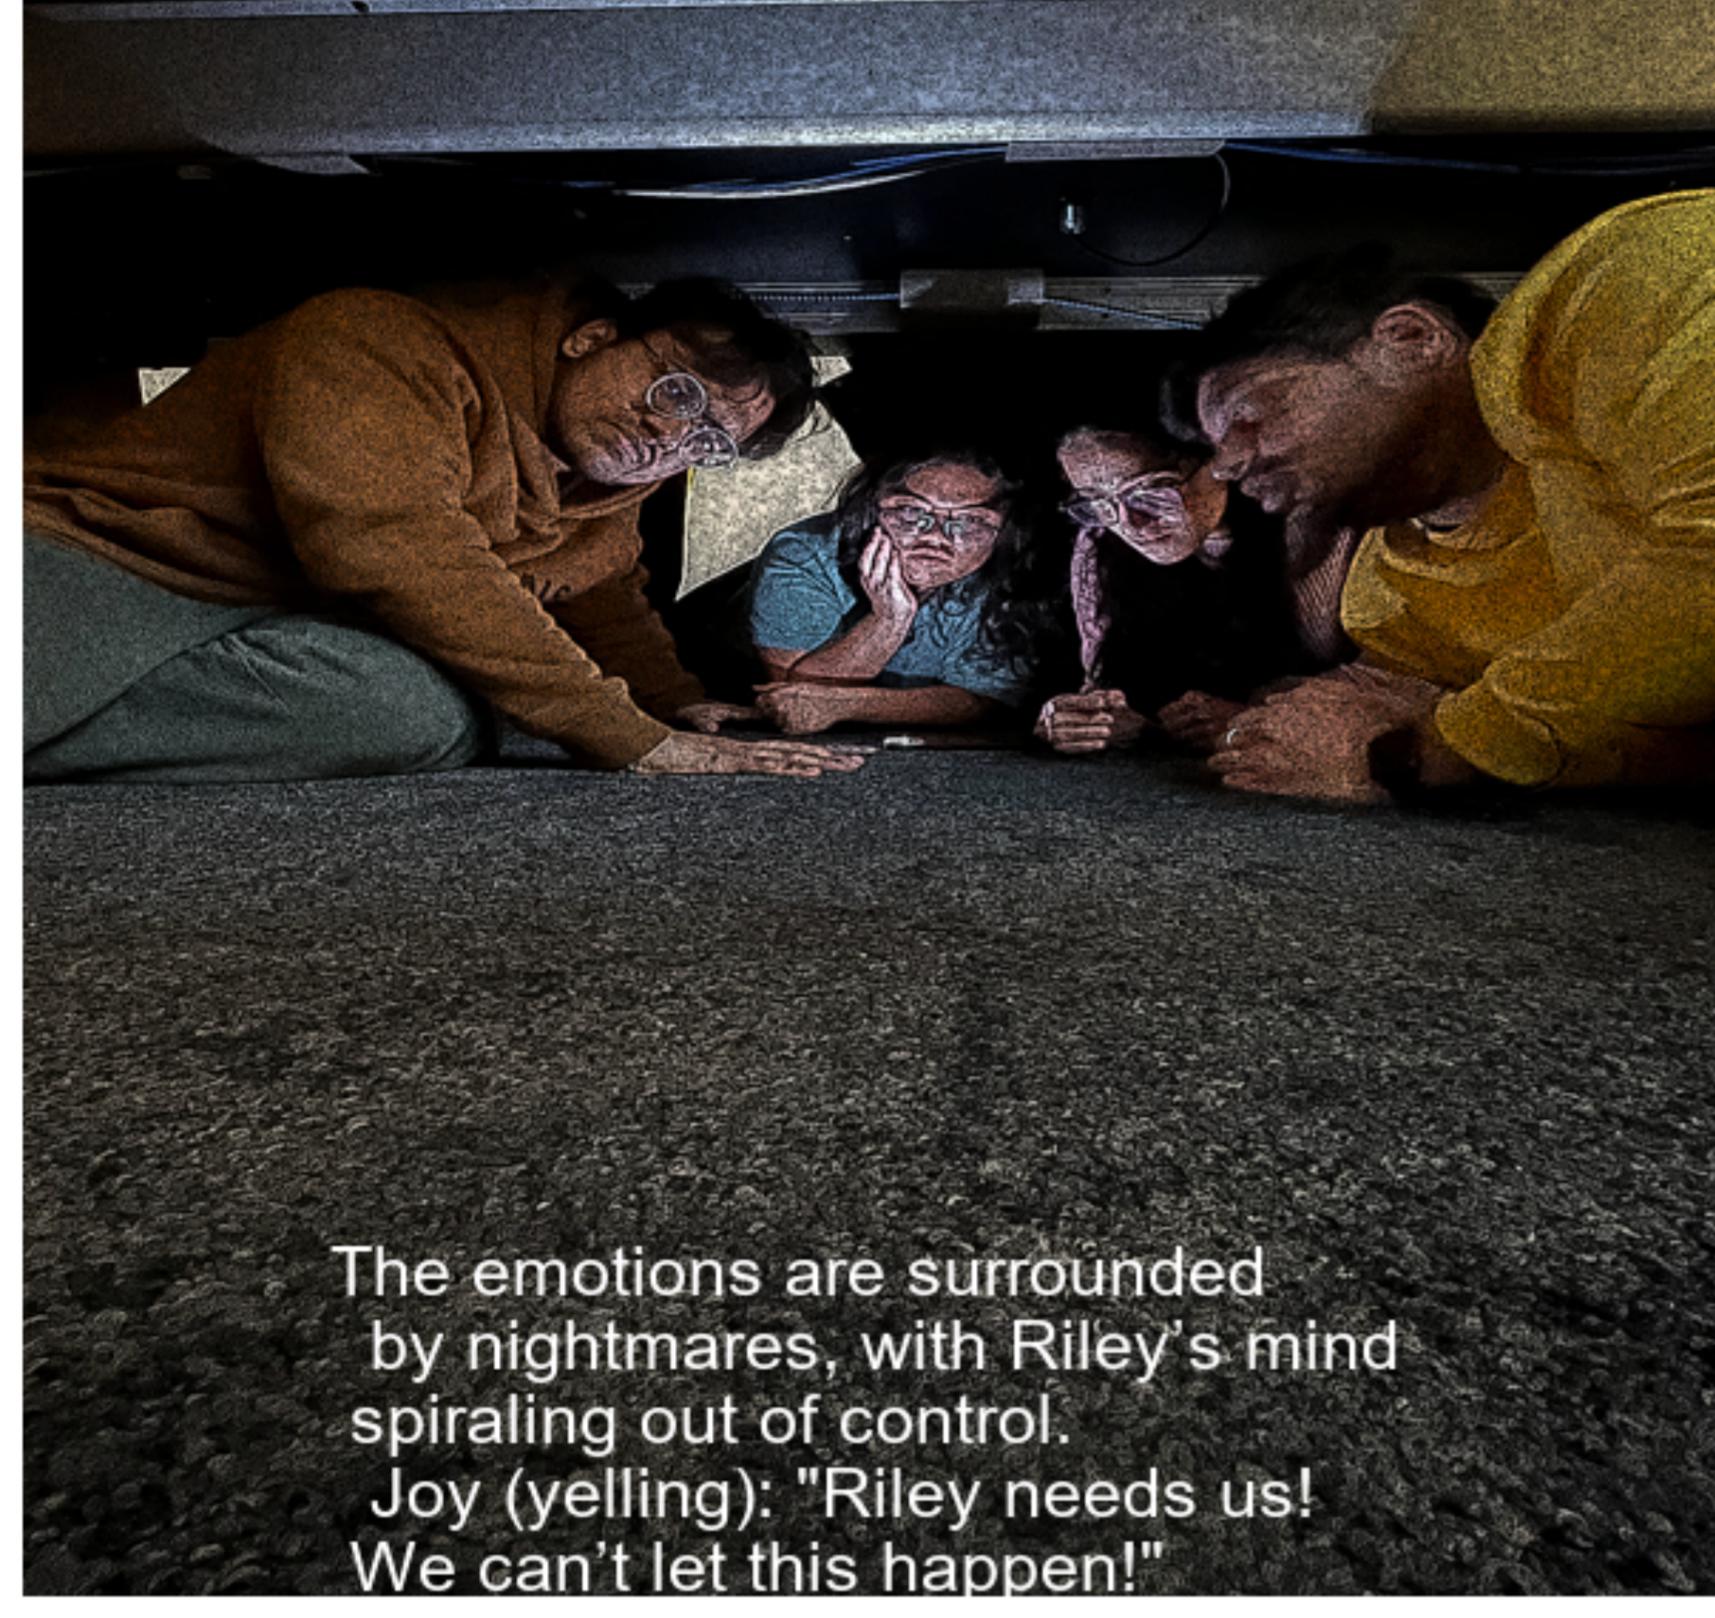

Disgust steps forward, fiercely. Disgust: "Stop messing with her memories!"

Fearling unleashes a storm of distorted memories: broken toys, her first day at school, and all Riley's anxieties come to life.

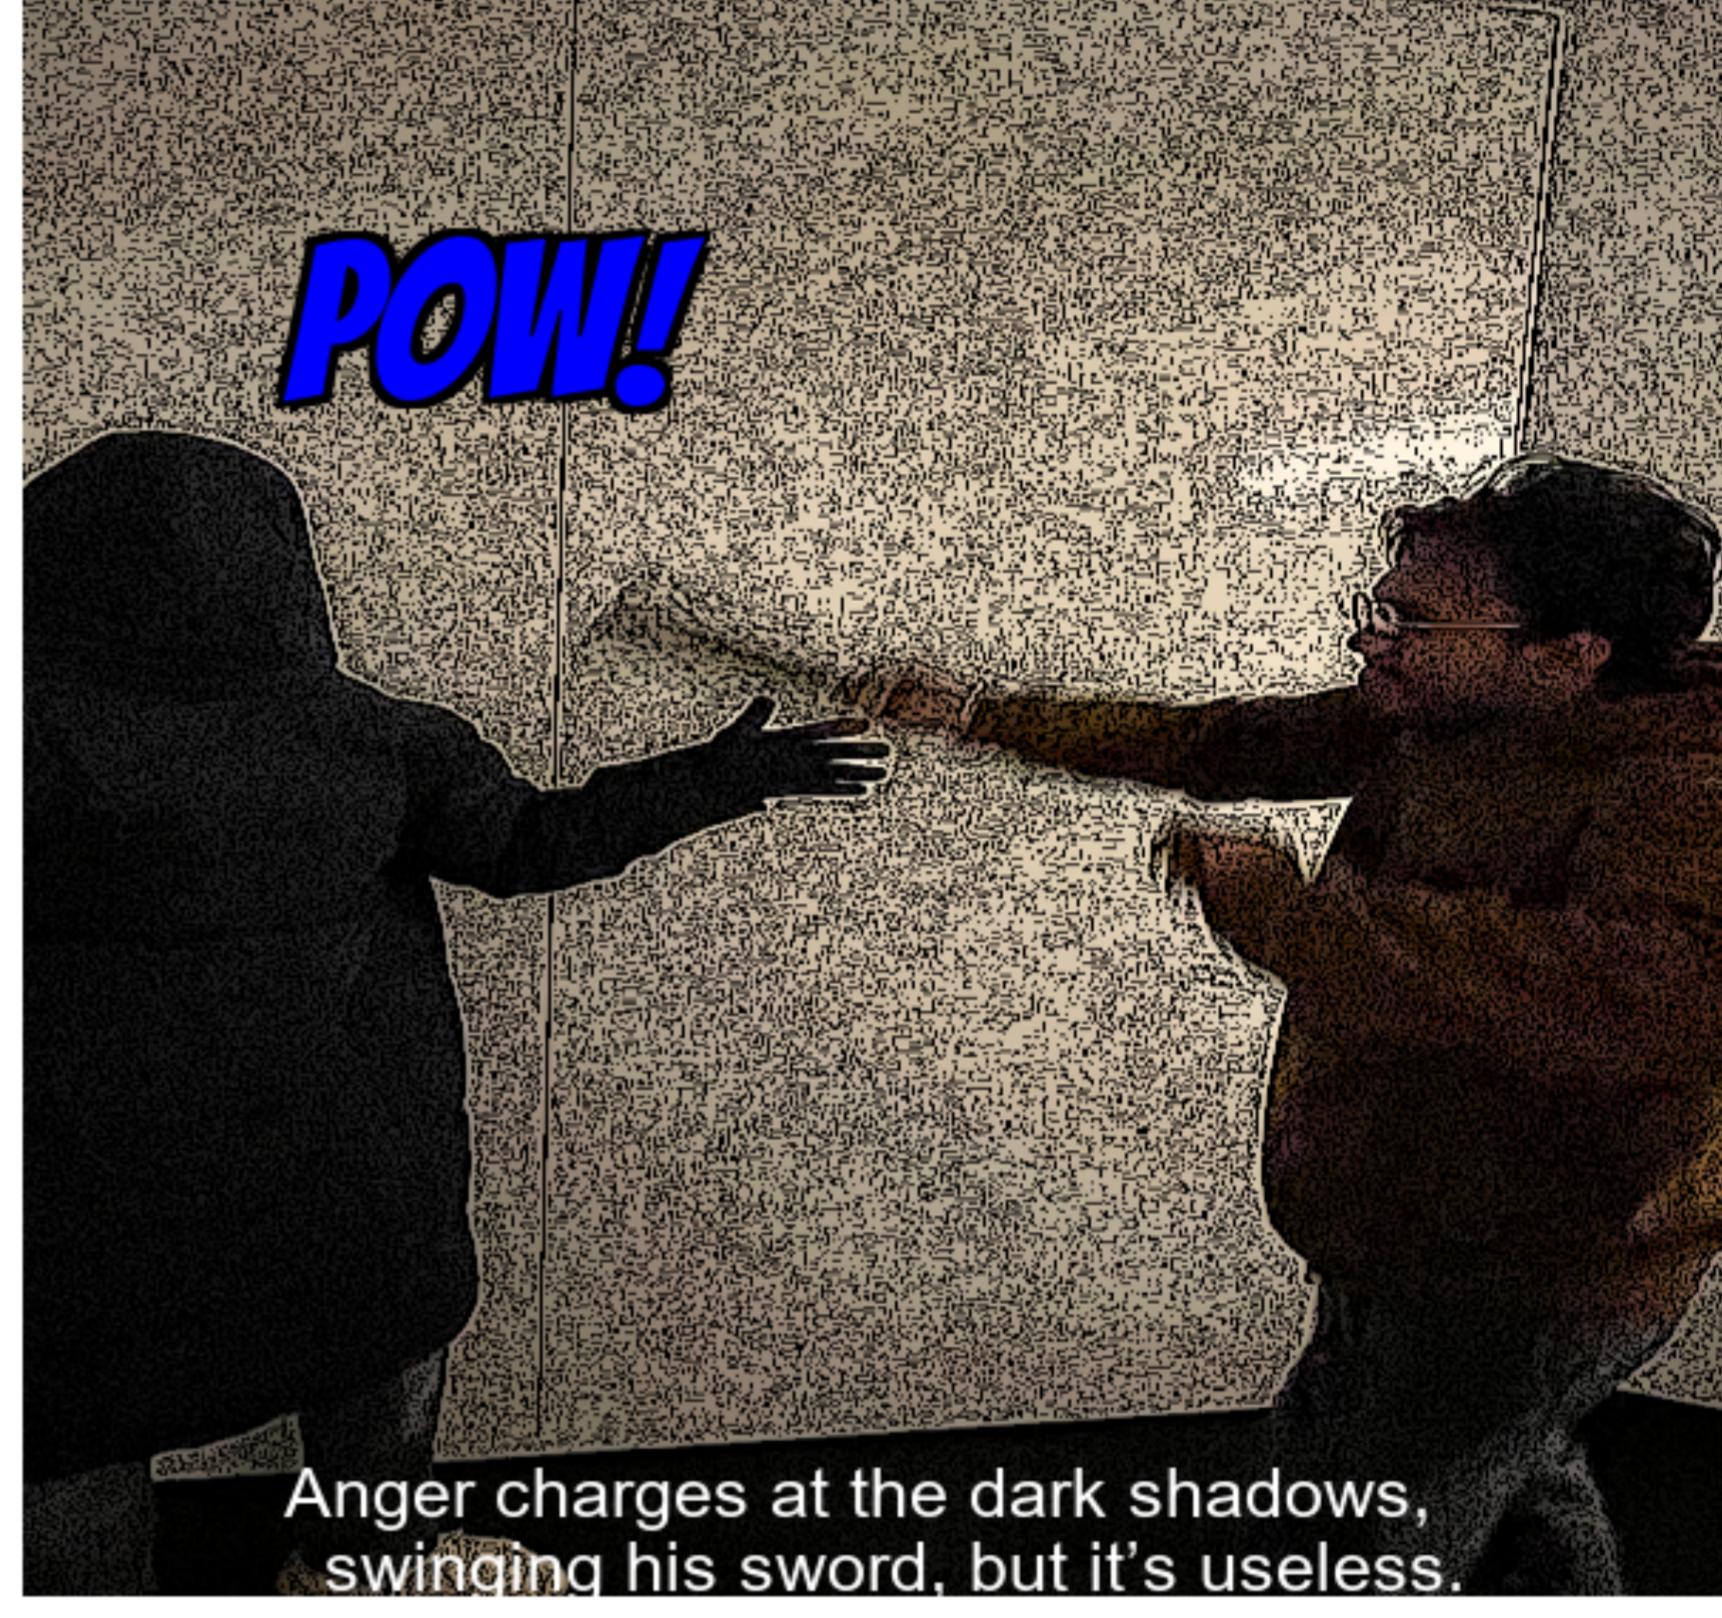

Sadness tries to stop the storm by recalling a peaceful memory, but it flickers out of existence.

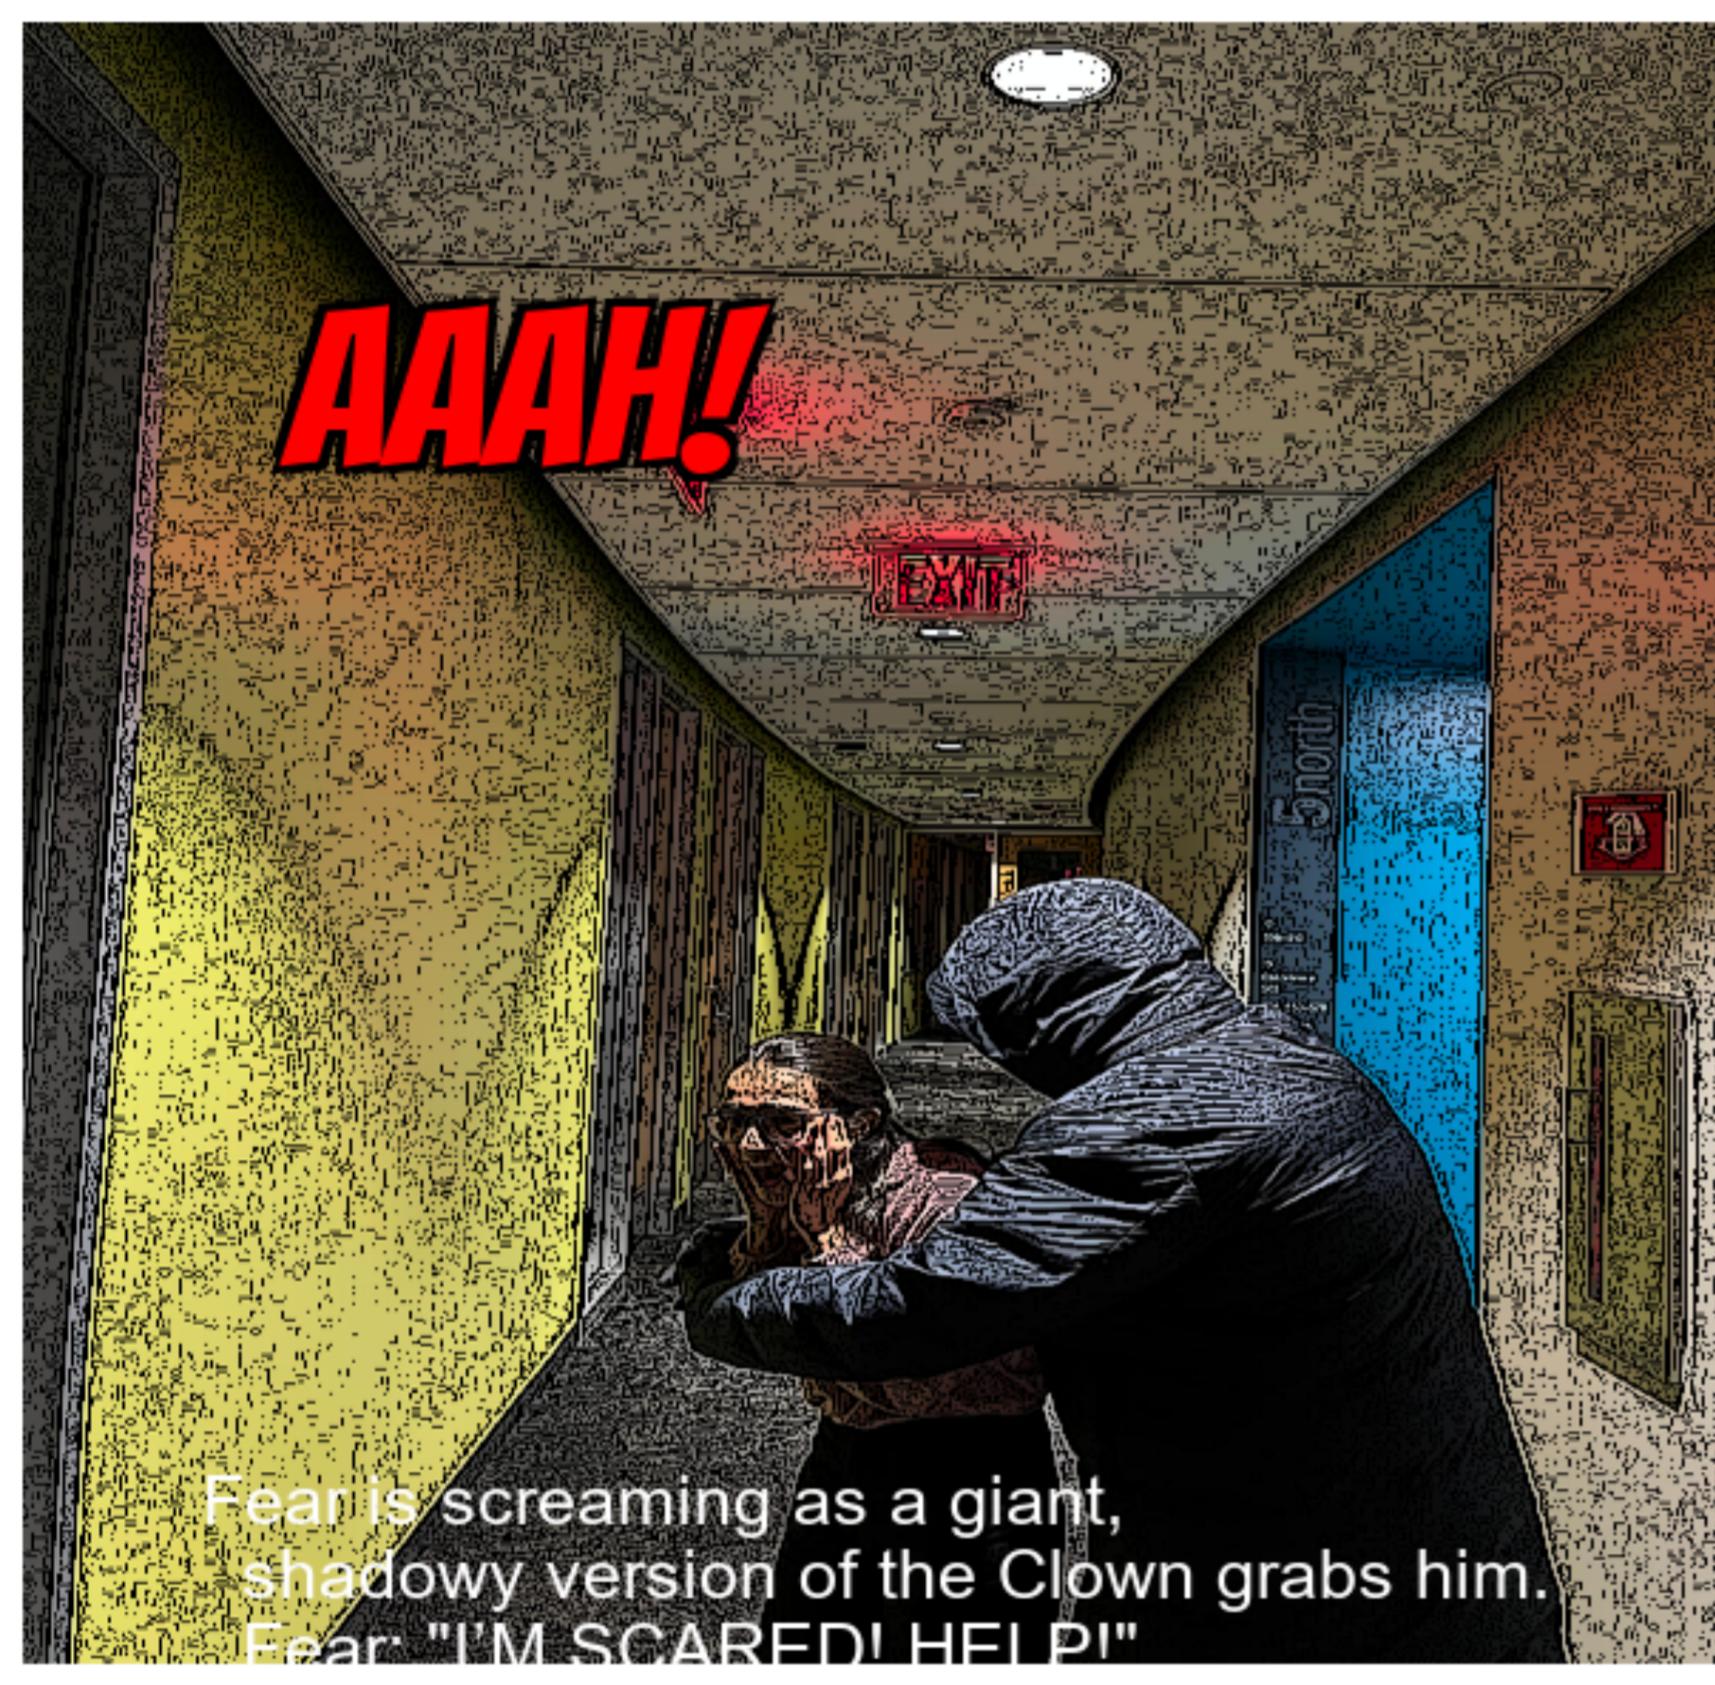

The emotions are surrounded by nightmares, with Riley's mind spiraling out of control.

Joy (yelling): "Riley needs us! We can't let this happen!"

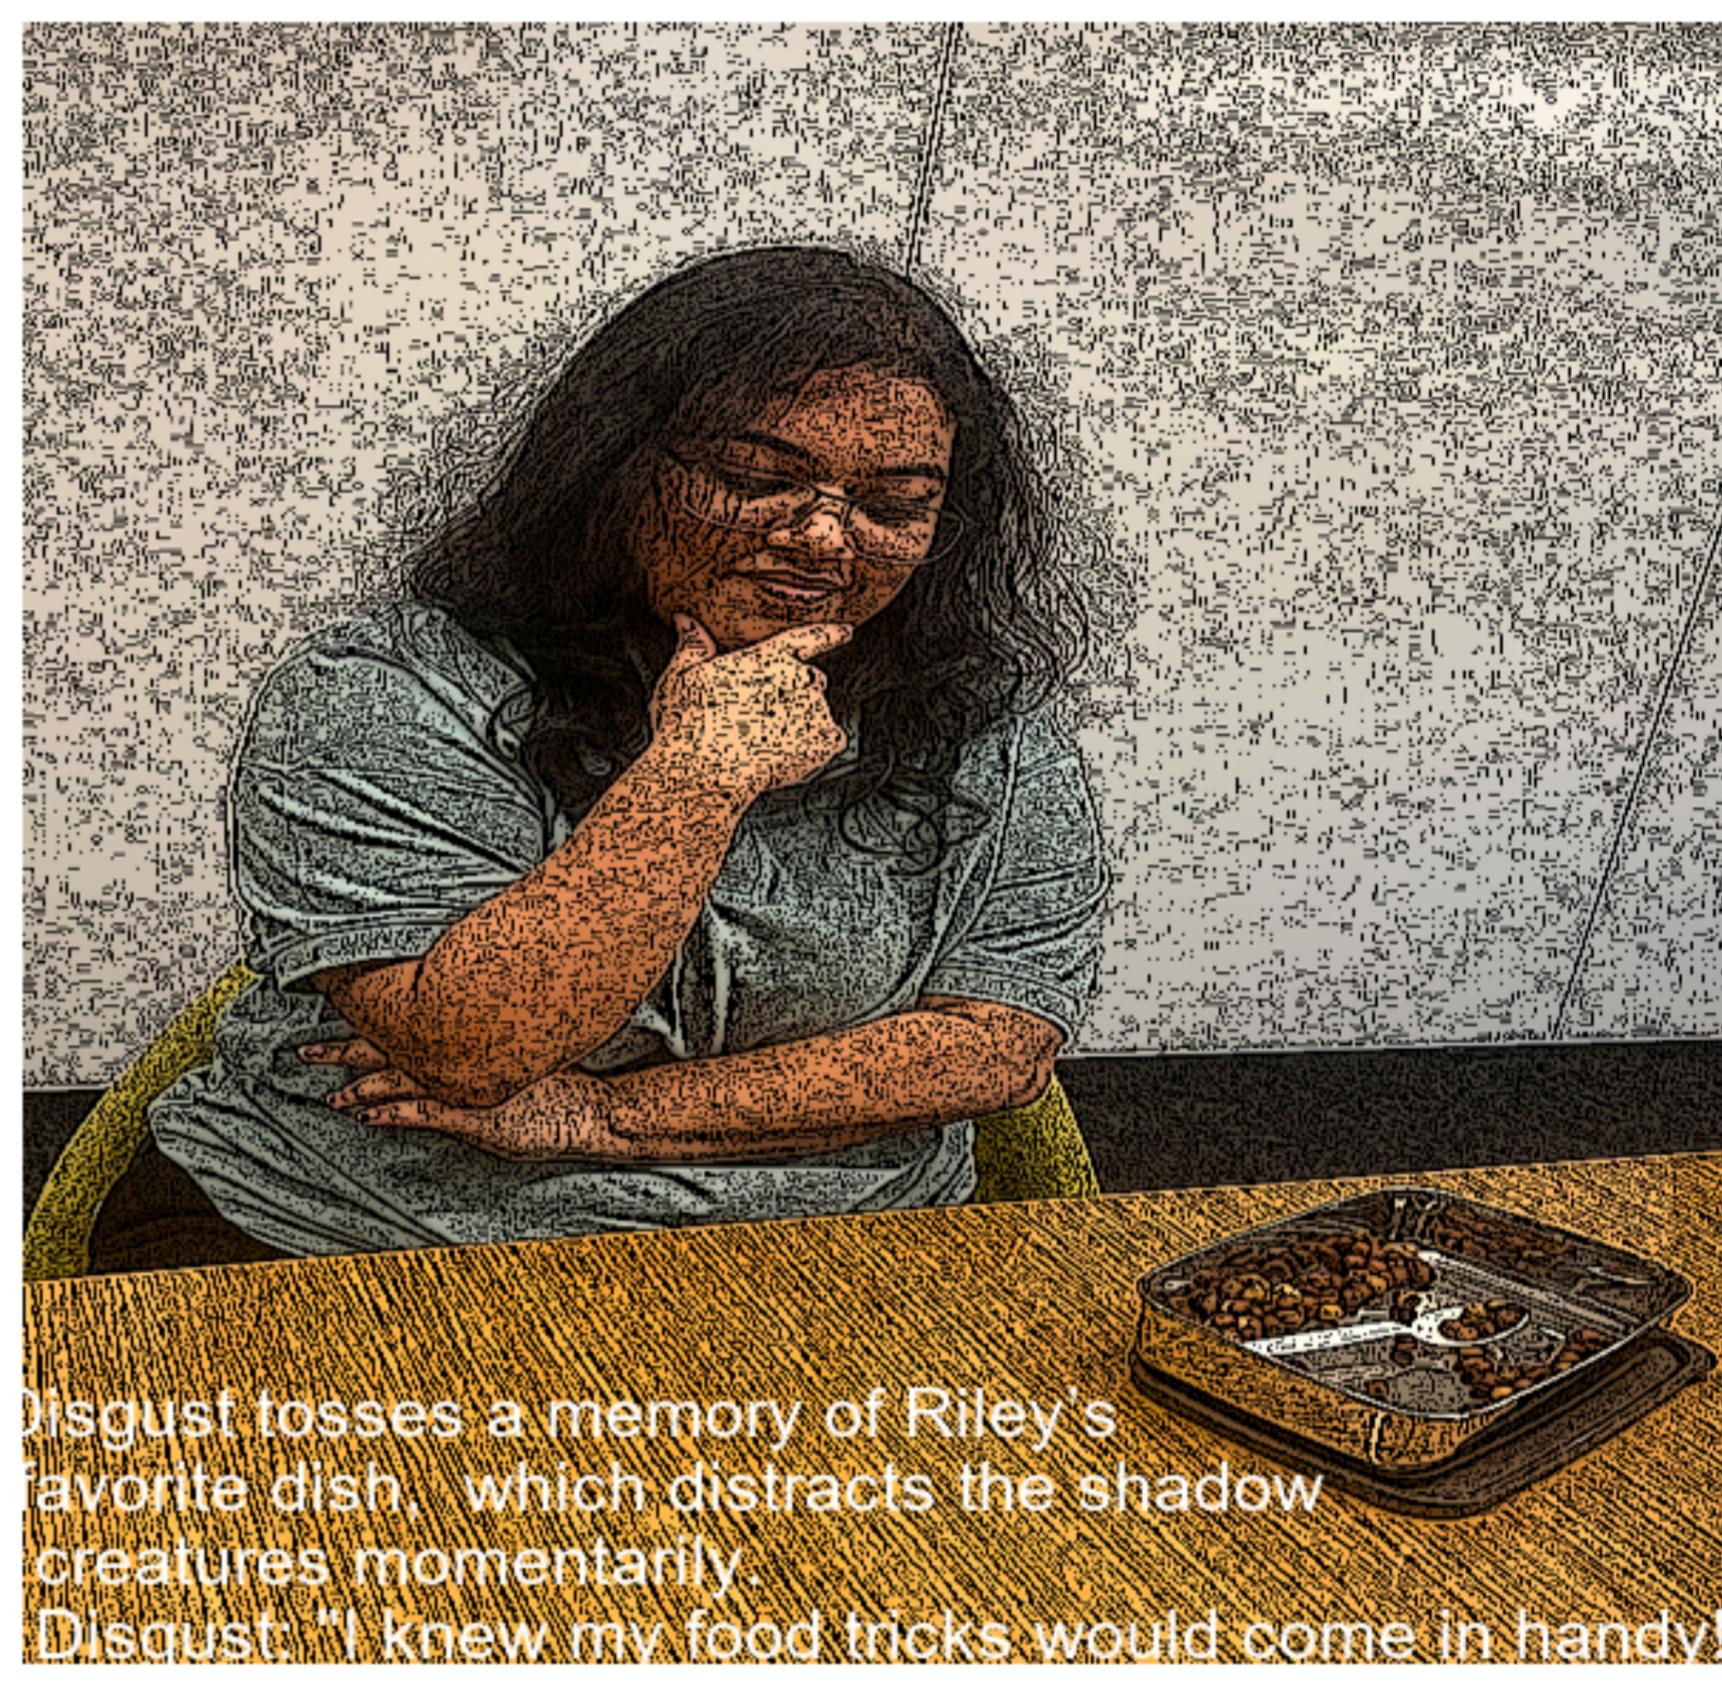

Anger charges at the dark shadows, swinging his sword, but it's useless.

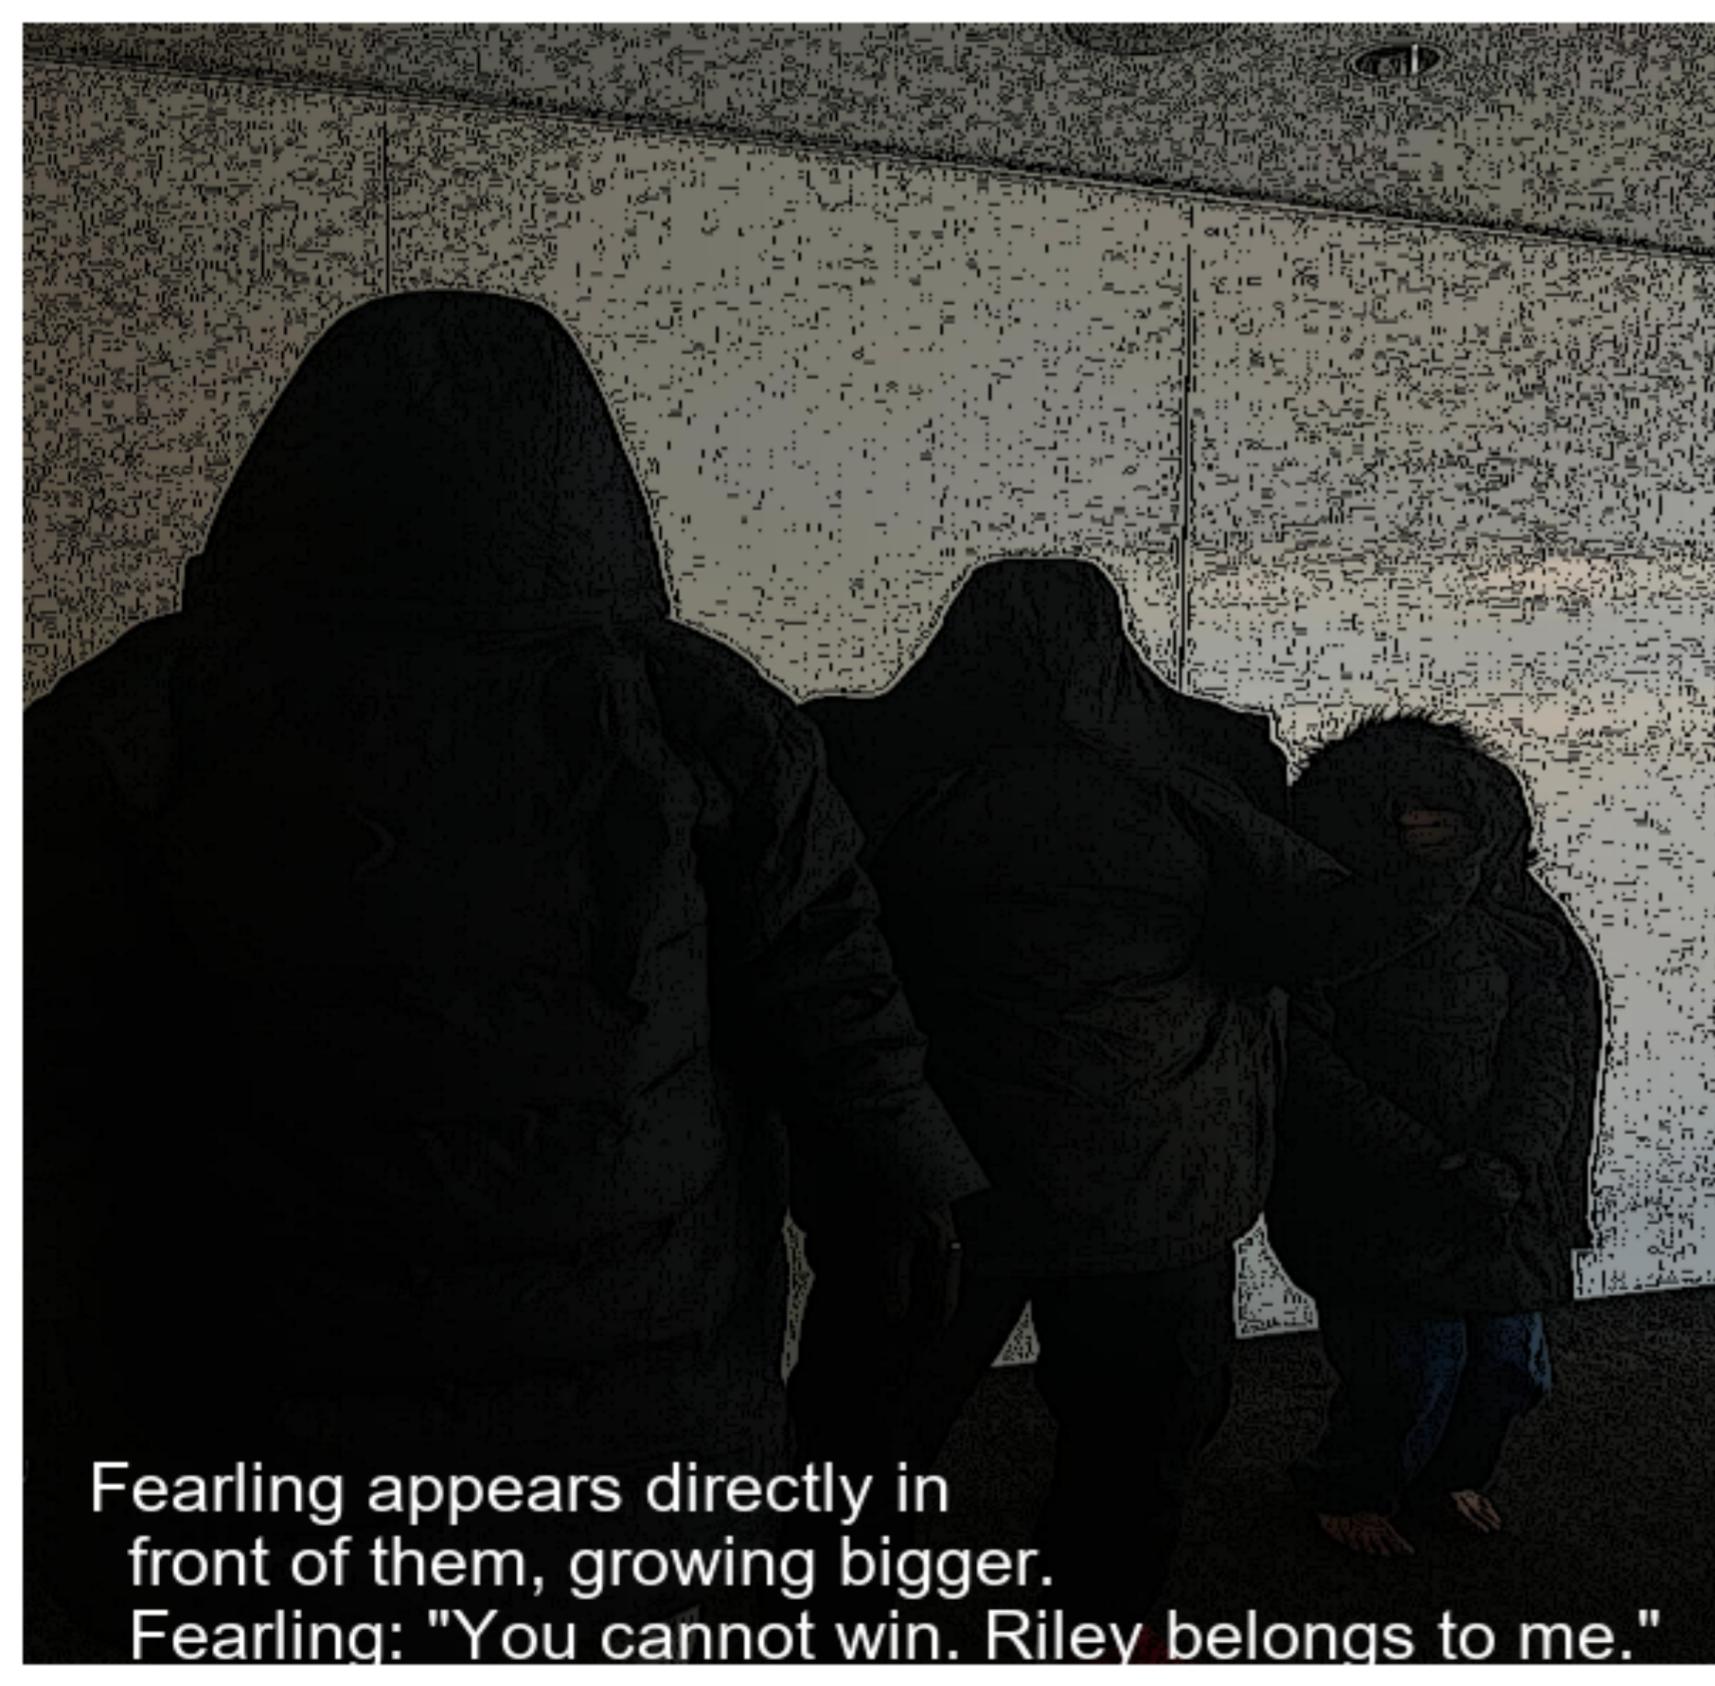

Fear is screaming as a giant, shadowy version of the Clown grabs him.

Fear: "I'M SCARED! HEI PI!"

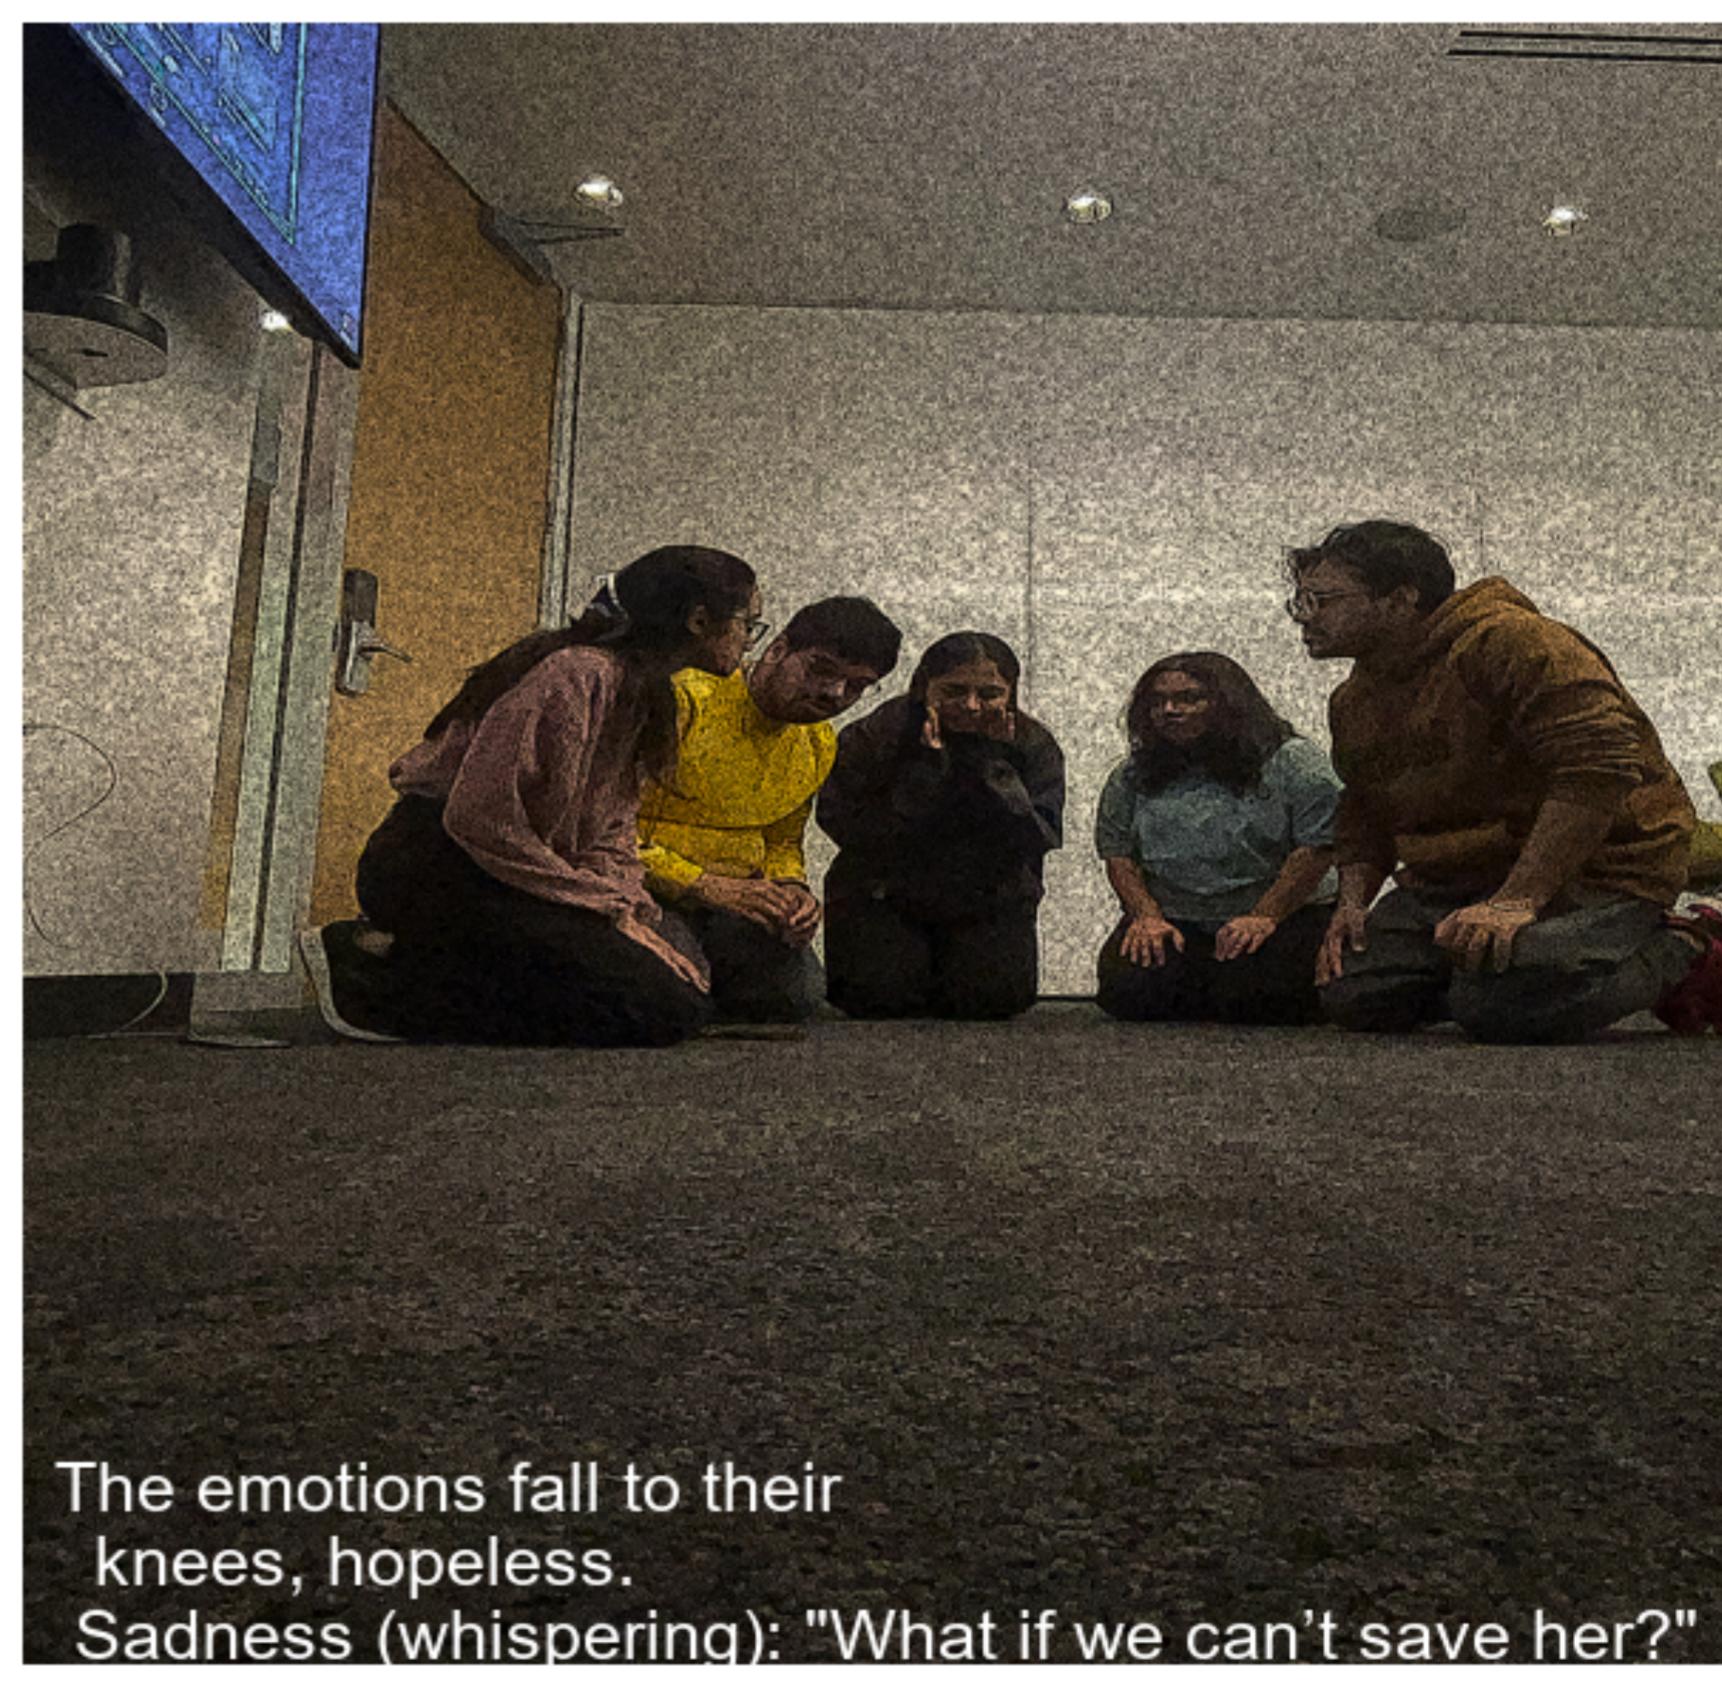

Disgust tosses a memory of Riley's favorite dish, which distracts the shadow creatures momentarily.

Disgust: "I knew my food tricks would come in handy!"

Fearling appears directly in front of them, growing bigger.

Fearling: "You cannot win. Riley belongs to me."

The emotions fall to their knees, hopeless.

Sadness (whispering): "What if we can't save her?"

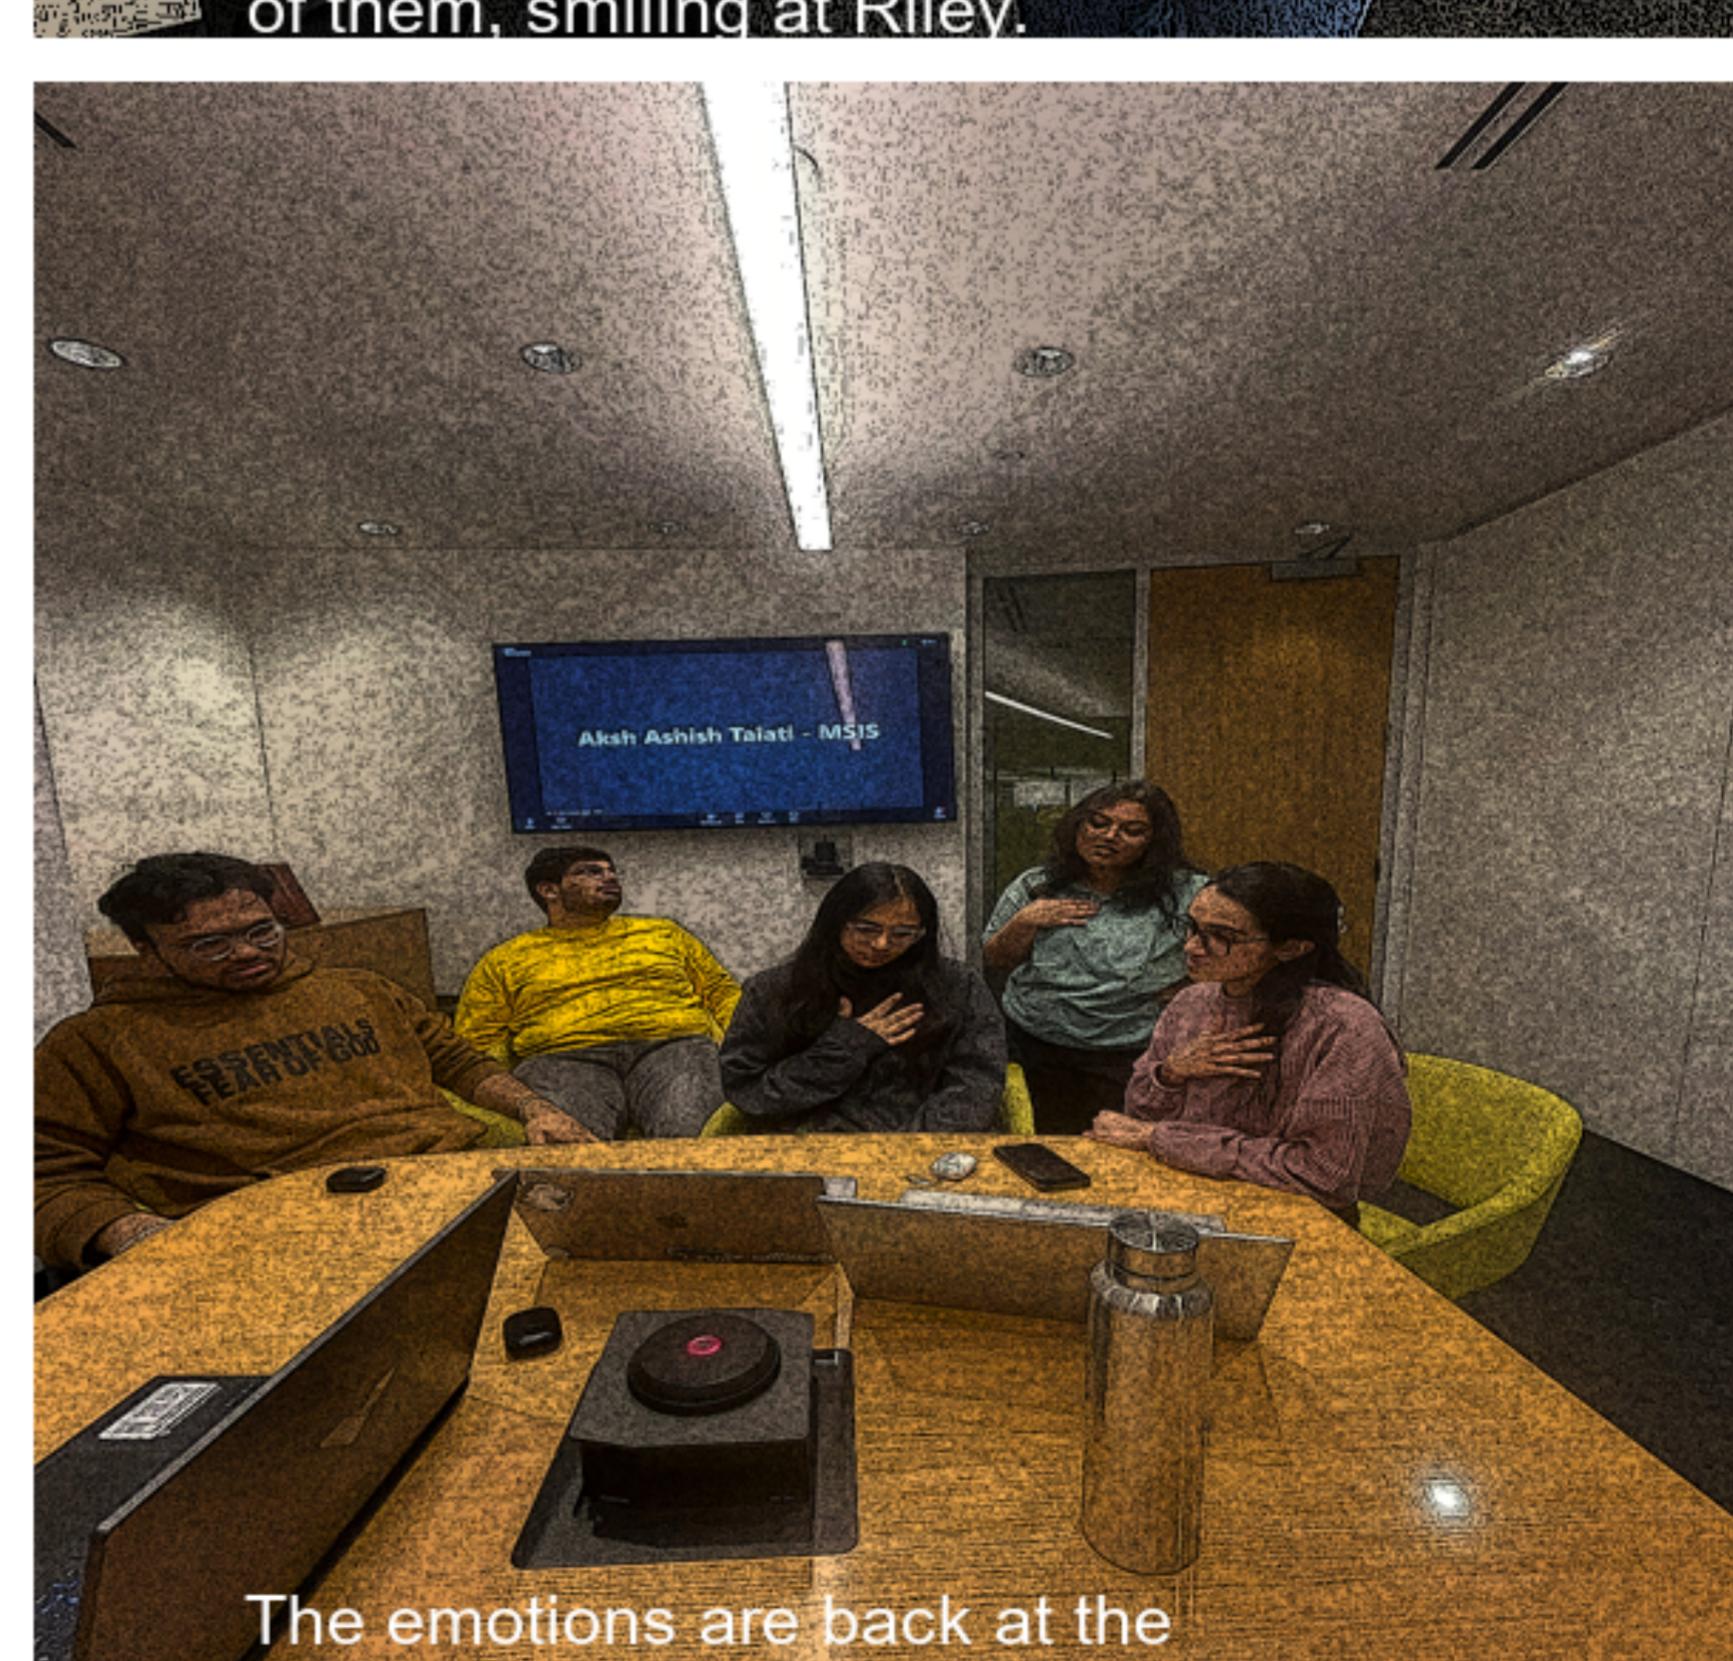

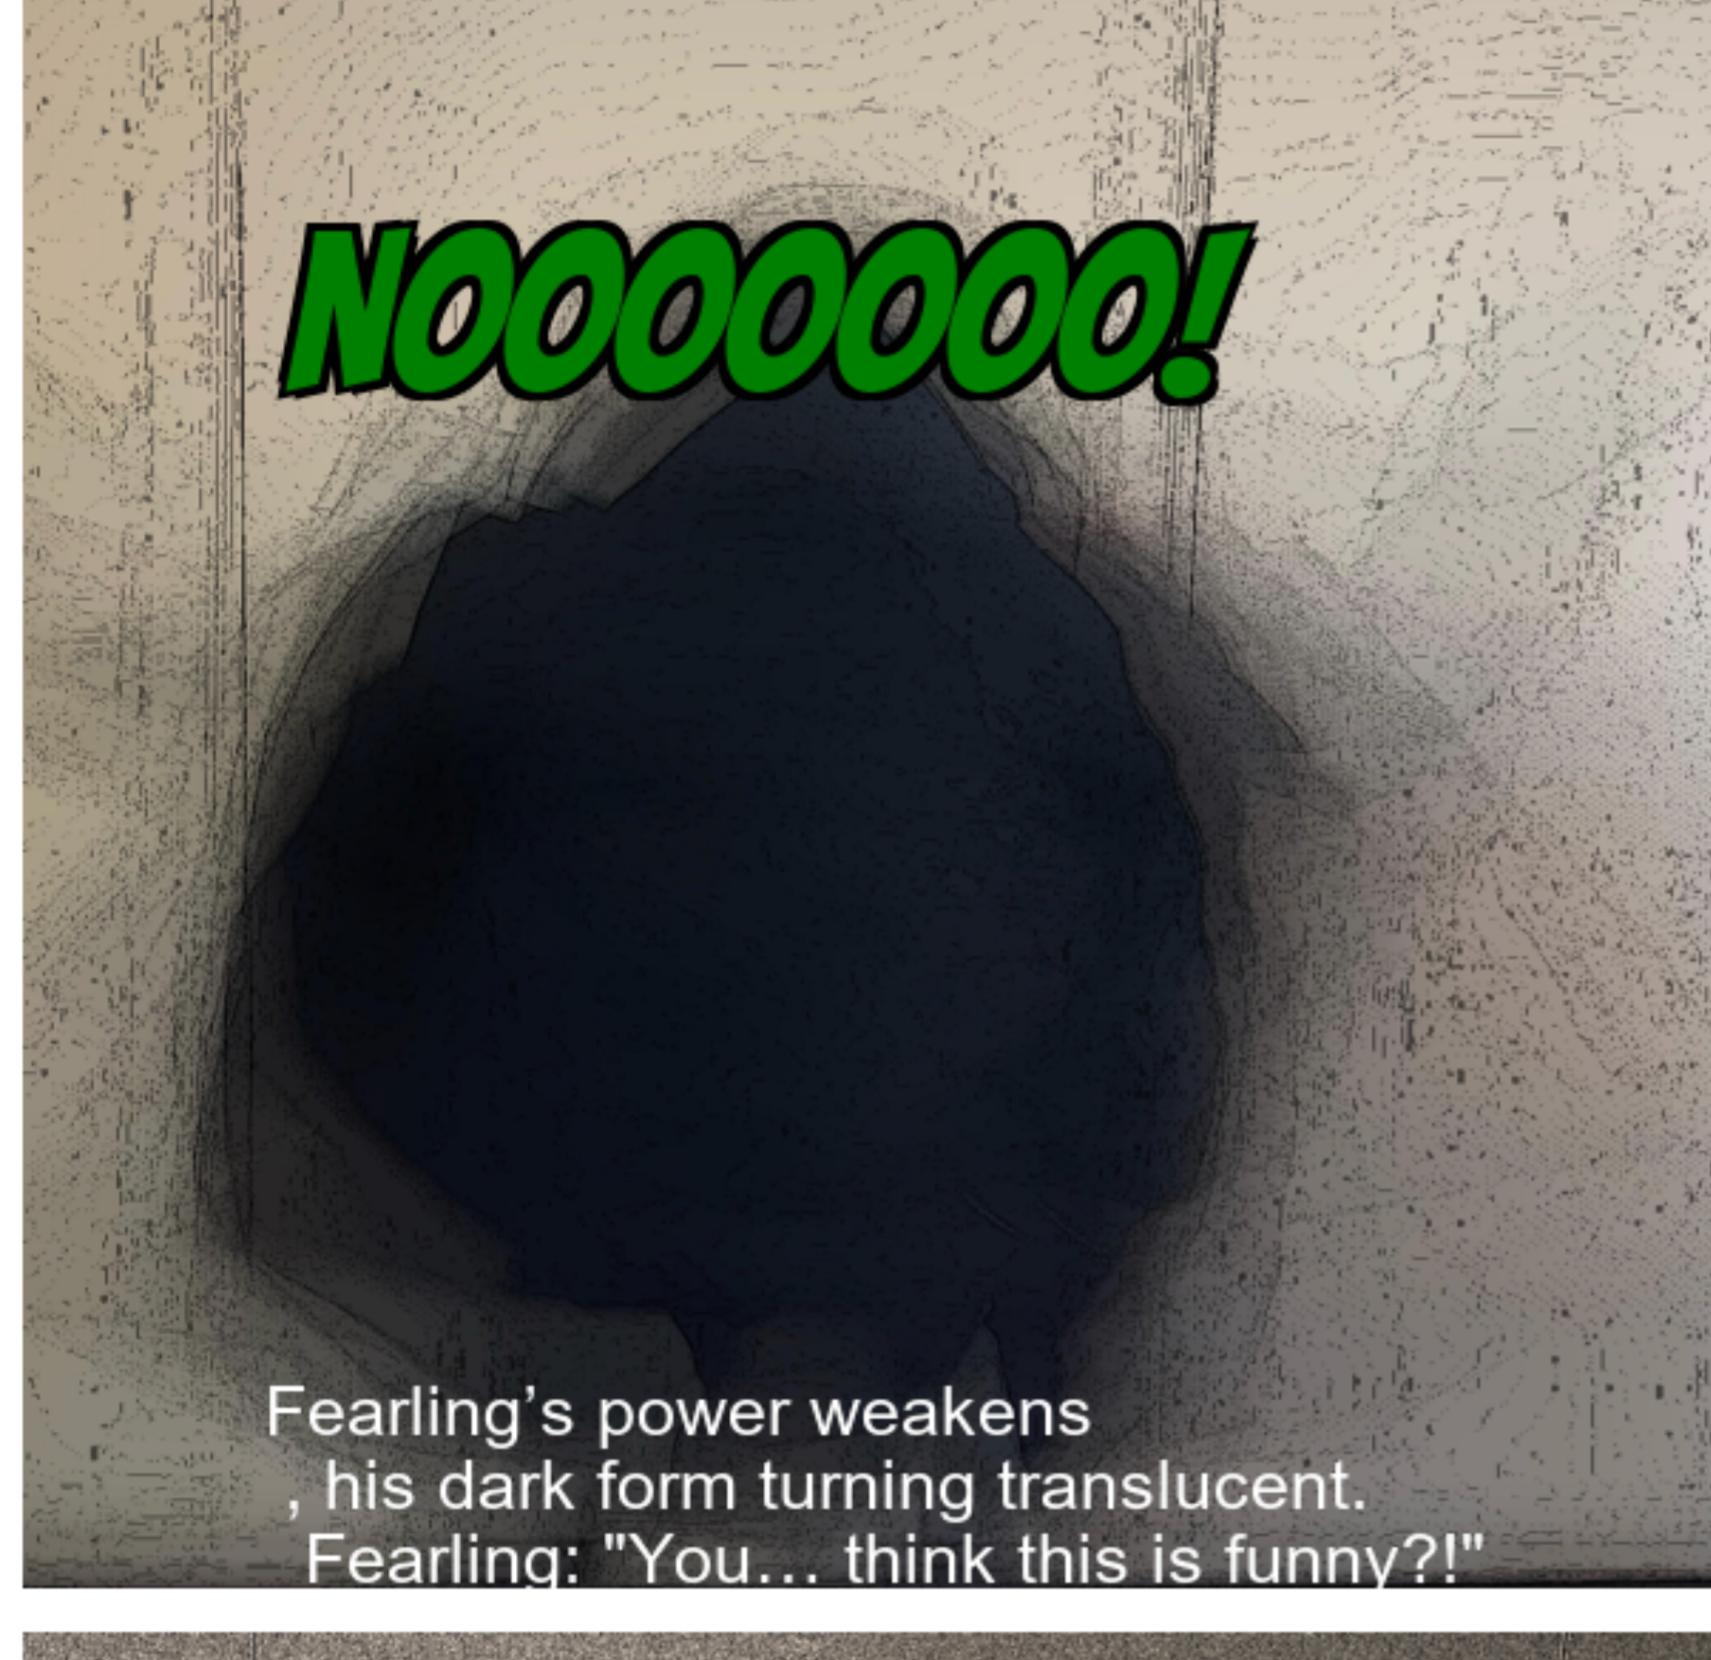

Joy looks up, a sudden realization.

Joy: "Wait, maybe we don't need to fight... we need to make her laugh!"

Joy attempts a ridiculous dance, Anger joins with his angry stomp, Disgust rolls her eyes, and Fear freaks out but reluctantly starts moving to the rhythm.
